GOVERNOR-GENERAL VISITOR TO-DAY IN SOUTH VANCOUVER

First Event of Kind in Municipality's History

Greeted in Burnaby; Goes to New Westminster

Vancouver, July 22.—For the first time in the history of South Vancouver, the Governor-General of Canada and the vice-regal party to-day paid an official visit to the municipality and were given an enthusiastic reception by the assembled citizens in the grounds of the Municipal Hall.

Arriving at the Municipal Hall shortly after 10 a. m., Lord Byng and his party were greeted by Reeves, McClintock and members of the Municipal Council, representatives of the Board of Trade, returned soldiers and women's organizations, the E. O. D. E. V. O. N., and Women's Institute, Elks, Leon J. Ladner, M. P., and municipal officials.

Reeve McClintock, on behalf of the people of South Vancouver, officially received the Governor-General and extended a hearty welcome to the party, presenting to Lord Byng an illuminated address.

The Governor-General was also presented with a badge from the A. and N. V. A., indicating that he had been elected an honorary member of the local branch of that organization.

Greeted by Ex-Soldiers.

Lord Byng graciously acknowledged the welcome extended to him by the people of the municipality, and, leaving the platform, mingled with a crowd of returned men who had assembled in an enclosed space to greet their old commander.

The party then proceeded to the Centennial on the south side of the grounds, where Lord Byng laid a large laurel wreath in memory of the fallen heroes.

Burnaby Welcome.

Leaving South Vancouver, the party proceeded along Kingsway to Burnaby Municipal Hall, where the Governor-General stopped for a few minutes to receive an official welcome from the municipality.

At Burnaby, the Governor-General was presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers by little Miss Kathleen McLean.

Here the vice-regal party was met by Mayor Johnson and New Westminster City officials, who with the Burnaby reeve and officials, accompanied the party to New Westminster.

ESKIMO KILLED TWO WHITE MEN IN FAR NORTH

Murdered Constable and Hudson's Bay Co. Man

Mounted Police Hold Him on Herschel Island

Edmonton, July 22.—That two white men were murdered by an Eskimo is the text of a report that has reached Edmonton.

It is stated an Eskimo of notorious character, under arrest for killing five of his countrymen, took advantage of his captor being asleep and did away with him. At the time he was incarcerated in a police station on Herschel Island in the care of Constable Bock of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. During a night in March he secured a rifle and shot the constable.

G. Binder, Hudson's Bay Company factor, came along shortly after the murder was committed. To make his escape from this second man, the Eskimo used the rifle again. He then left the station and made his way back to the tribe and stated that he had killed two white men. He might as well have said he had killed the people on the island.

Re-arrested. Word of the Eskimo's whereabouts was taken back to the post, and two other constables took the trail in an effort to retake the murderer. Apparently things moved along rapidly, as within twenty-four hours of his second crime the accused northerner was again a prisoner in the island post.

It is presumed locally that the native is still at the island, a member of the force who has just returned from Fort McPherson states that he has not yet been brought to that post, and Herschel is the only post north of McPherson.

It is not yet known if the trial will be conducted in the North or if the prisoner will be brought to Edmonton.

BRITISH INFANTRY WILL USE RADIO

Toronto, July 22.—A cable from London to The Mail and Empire says:

"Radio, instead of cable telephones, will be used in training infantry divisions of the army. Lord Cavan, Chief of the British General Staff, announced to-day while speaking at the Eton officers' training camp. This was his firm intention, Lord Cavan declared, owing to the fact that thousands of men were killed during the war while laying telegraph wires. It was also believed that the use of radio in this manner by the army would encourage its general use.

A. E. Ashe Wins Grand Aggregate for Second Time at Rifle Shoot

Local Shot Compiles Splendid Total, and Wins Governor-General's Medal; Major Cunningham, Westminster, Second; David Blair, 15-Year-Old Shot, Third.

(By Times Staff Representative)

Heals, July 22.—It is not often that a grand aggregate is won by the same man twice in succession, and it has never happened in the history of the B. C. Rifle Association before. Such was the case at Heals rifle range to-day when A. E. Ashe, of the 16th Scottish, added another honor to the already long string of events for Victoria, besides placing the 16th Scottish further in the lead by winning the Governor-General's silver medal and B. C. R. A. gold badge with a score of 458 in the Grand Aggregate for the second year in succession. New Westminster and Vancouver secured second and third place respectively in this aggregate.

Close Second.

A close call was made for second place between Cunningham of Westminster and David Blair of Vancouver, both securing scores of 449. But the Royal City shot took the lead, having better scores at the longer distance. Through young Blair qualifying for third place in the aggregate he will represent Vancouver in the Ottawa meet, being one of the team that will go from British Columbia. Major Cunningham won the Governor-General's bronze medal, and the B. C. R. A. silver badge, while Bugler Blair won the Dominion of Canada R. A. silver medal.

David Blair is considered as the wonder of the range at this year's meet. Never before had so young a boy carried off so many events. (Concluded on page 3)

PREMIER-ELECT OF MANITOBA IS EXPERT FARMER

John Bracken Chosen by Farmers As Leader

Native Ontarian; Head of Agricultural College

Winnipeg, July 22.—The new Premier-elect of Manitoba, John Bracken, P.S.A.; Principal of the Manitoba Agricultural College, is only thirty-nine years old. He is a Canadian by birth and education, and a member of generations of farming stock. He was born and raised on a large dairy farm in the county of Leeds, Ontario, and while he was still in his teens became its manager.

Mr. Bracken took the B.S.A. course at the Ontario Agricultural College and graduated with honors.

Mr. Bracken was one of the first team on livestock judging at the International Livestock Show, Chicago, that brought to Canada the coveted trophy. Seed Work. Very shortly after graduation Mr. Bracken came to Manitoba as representative of the Federal Seed Branch and did excellent work in stimulating interest in the production of better seed. On the formation of the Province of Saskatchewan in 1905 he was invited to become Superintendent of Institutions and Fairs and for two years combined that work. (Concluded on page 4)

RATEPAYERS TO VOTE ON SHORT RECOMMENDATIONS

City Plans Straw Vote by Mail to Test Public Sentiment

Mayor Editing Report to Aid People to Understand It

Every ratepayer in Victoria will be given an opportunity to say what he or she thinks about Dr. Adam Shortt's report on the city's financial position by means of a scheme advanced by John Dean, who was largely responsible for bringing Dr. Shortt here, at a conference with Mayor Marchant this morning. Mr. Dean's plan, it is expected, will be put into effect immediately.

Under the arrangement proposed, a postcard questionnaire will be sent to all ratepayers. It will contain blank spaces and dotted lines where the ratepayer can say whether he agrees with Dr. Shortt's recommendations or not. If he does not agree, he will be asked to indicate what portions of the report he considers unwise. In other words, a straw vote will be taken on the Shortt scheme. Difficult Document.

This plan, however, presents a number of difficulties. In the first place, the Shortt report is a solid mass of some 35,000 words, with not a figure or indentation to segregate its recommendations from its statements of fact. So far, only the recommendations, which are unknown to the civic body, have been made public. (Concluded on page 4)

ALLIES' TERMS ARE ACCEPTED BY GERMANY

Financial Control During the Proposed Moratorium

Letter from Berlin to Reparations Commission

Paris, July 22.—(Associated Press).—Germany has formally accepted the demands of the Allied Committee on Guarantees which were presented in Berlin last Tuesday. In a letter to the Reparations Commission, received to-day, Chancellor Wirth stated that the German Government, after profound deliberation, had decided to accept the conditions for the duration of the moratorium which the German Government assumed would soon be granted.

The conditions, the letter points out, place a heavy load on the German Government and their acceptance is only agreed to by the Government and the Reichstag on the theory that the forthcoming decision of the reparations question will constitute a definite settlement of the chief financial negotiations which have been the subject of negotiations between the Committee on Guarantees and the German Government. Conversations.

Paris, July 22.—Unofficial conversations have begun in Reparations Commission circles on the question of a moratorium for Germany now that the contents of the report of the Committee on Guarantees has become substantially known. The report of the Committee on Guarantees was presented to the Reparations Commission on Monday or Tuesday. It is said that rigid financial control over the German finances would be insisted upon. (Concluded on page 13)

PALESTINE AND SYRIAN MANDATES GIVEN APPROVAL

London, July 22.—The Palestine and Syrian mandates were approved this afternoon by the Council of the League of Nations with the understanding that they take effect as soon as France and Italy reach an agreement on certain minor details now under discussion in Paris. The revised form of Article 14, which presented the chief difficulty, was accepted by all parties.

AUSTRALIA TO HAVE NO GERMAN CONSULAR OFFICES

London, July 22.—The Australian Government has refused to agree to the appointment of German consuls in Australia, says a Reuter dispatch from Melbourne. Premier Hughes, while not asserting that trade never can be resumed with Germany, declares that the Australian Ministry does not feel called upon to "grease the wheels for German trade."

Building Involving Upwards of Million for Victoria City

Construction Boom Under Way Here; Business Blocks Running Into a Total of $650,000 Already Started or Contemplated; Residences Valued at About $200,000 Being Built.

Victoria is experiencing a building boom. Building operations involving a cost of upwards of a million dollars are at present under way or in contemplation.

Work has already been started on city business blocks, the total cost of which is in the neighborhood of $400,000.

Other business blocks are in contemplation at a cost of about $250,000. There is also a tremendous movement of residence construction for at the present time there are residences under construction in the city and its environs at a total value of approximately $200,000.

Start On Arcade Building.

Luney Bros., Ltd., have commenced work on the restoration of the western wing of the Arcade Building, destroyed by fire on May 10. The new building will be a concrete and steel structure, designed by Architect Percy Fox, the contract figure for which is $35,000.

New Bank Building. Demolition is under way at this moment by Contractor Sol Cameron of the old Clarence Hotel block at the corner of Douglas and Yates, preparatory to the erection of a modern bank and office building which is expected to cost $250,000 when complete.

Plans for the new bank building have been prepared by Architect A. A. Cox, of Vancouver, and tenders for the erection of this fine structure, which will compare with the most handsome bank buildings in the country, are being called at once.

Tenders are being called immediately for the construction of a steel and concrete three-story block with basement at 1110 Douglas Street for Fletcher Bros., the big music emporium. This building, it is expected, will cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000, as it will be the latest in fireproof construction and design.

The architect for the Fletcher Building is C. Elwood Watkins. The Cusack Building, designed by Architect Watkins, is now approaching completion at the corner of Douglas and Fisgard Streets, opposite the Hudson's Bay Building. This structure cost $20,000. Luney Bros., Ltd., who recently completed the alteration of the Vernon Block for Woolworth Co., at a cost of $65,000, started this week to remodel the northern half of the building and make additions at the rear of the property at a cost of $15,000.

Other large business blocks are in contemplation, one at the south-west junction of Government and Humboldt Streets, and another at the corner of Douglas and Yates. (Concluded on page 4)

PEOPLE READY TO WORK LAND CANADA'S NEED

Hon. P. C. Larkin Says Energetic Settlers Wanted

Situation Is Being Discussed in London

London, July 22.—(Canadian Press).—Interviewed by a newspaper in regard to Professor W. Caldwell's letter to the press, in which he declared that only a very small percentage of Englishmen are really fit for life on the land in Canada, and that the average Englishman often seems somewhat inferior, and takes years to discard his "side" and anaesthetics, Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner here, said the kind of people wanted in Canada were those who could settle on the land.

It was not insult, said Mr. Larkin, to an English town dweller, to say that if he took up farming in Canada he might possibly be a failure. The English country dweller was not a failure.

Many Leaders. Colonel Smith, of the Canadian Immigration Department, pointed out that the records of Canada were full of instances of Premiers of provinces, Lieutenant-Governors, merchants, princes and bankers who had emigrated from England in youth.

The immigration figures showed Englishmen were not comparative failures. A certain number of Englishmen failed to adapt themselves immediately on reaching Canada, but as soon as they readjusted themselves, they took their proper place with the rest.

Beaver Hut Kept AS A MEMORIAL. Saved from Destruction in England; Known to Canadian ex-Soldiers. London, July 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Beaver Hut, on the Strand, famous in war-time as a rendezvous for Canadian soldiers, has been narrowly escaped destruction, and is to be preserved as a memorial to the Canadians. This is due to the keen observation and active sympathies of Miss Jeanette Dicks, of Upper Brock Street, London. Miss Dicks was a passenger on a bus passing the Strand recently when she noticed that the hut was being destroyed. She immediately jumped off the bus and asked what was being done with the building. She was informed that it was being torn down. Without a moment's hesitation Miss Dicks offered to buy the building and her offer was accepted. She will have it re-erected at a renowned beauty spot at the foot of Pheasant Hill, Hambleton, Buckinghamshire, by the architect who was responsible for its erection on the Strand.

Board and an Able Manager to Control Canada's Railways

Hon. C. Stewart, Now Visitor On This Coast, Says New Board Will Be Representative of All Canada; Highly Trained Technical Man Will Be Manager.

Vancouver, July 22.—Referring to Canada's railway problem during the course of an address in North Vancouver, Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, said the Government intended to give Government ownership the trial of its life. He said it was the intention of the Minister of Railways to appoint a board to manage the National Railway system that would be representative of all parts of Canada and of the many phases of the industrial life of the country, to which the transportation problem was vital. Associated with the board would be a highly trained technical man as manager of the system. With this organization established the whole management and operation of the system would be turned over to the board and its executive officer.

Referring to the need of people to make the railways pay, the Minister said that what was wanted was primarily the sturdy, pioneer British stock which would work and adhere to the country's institutions and laws and be good citizens of Canada.

G. T. R. Directors Resign.

Ottawa, July 22.—(Canadian Press).—The Government to-day received the resignation of J. N. Dupuis, of Montreal, from the board of directors of the Grand Trunk Railway. The only director's resignation still outstanding is that of E. L. Newcombe, the Deputy Minister of Justice. Announcement of the resignations of Sir Joseph Flavelle, Howard G. Kelley and A. J. Mitchell, who made last night's news.

The resignation of Mr. Newcombe, who is overseas, will probably come by cable. The resignations of the directors of the Grand Trunk Railway, will not take effect immediately. It is stated. It is said to be quite possible that some of the members of the board will be reappointed. In the meantime, the present directors of both the Grand Trunk and the Canadian National will carry on until their successors are appointed.

The purpose of the resignations is to give the Minister of Railways a free hand in the selection of the new board.

Monday morning they will be taken by the reception party under Mr. Ivel to inspect the drydock at Esquimaux, the new outer docks and the breakwater, and the Astrophysical Observatory. They have been invited to lunch with the directors of the Chamber of Commerce. In the afternoon they will go to the Butchart Gardens as the guests of the city.

The big public meeting to be addressed by the ministers will start at the Royal Victoria Theatre at 8 o'clock Monday night.

On Tuesday Mr. Motherwell will go to the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton.

Hon. D. D. McKenzie. Daniel D. McKenzie is of Scottish descent. He was born at Lake Ainslie, Nova Scotia, on January 8, 1859, the son of Duncan McKenzie and his wife Jessie. He was educated at the public schools of his neighborhood and at the Sydney Academy. In January, 1881, he married Miss Florence M. McDonald, of Sydney. (Concluded on page 12)

DEFEATED IRISH GROUPS RETREAT TOWARD CORK

Insurgents Expected to Resist National Army There

Dublin, July 22.—With both flanks of the republican insurgent army broken, through yesterday's capture of Waterford and Limerick, the irregular troops to-day were reported to be retreating in the direction of Cork. They are believed to number some thousands of soldiers, sufficiently equipped with arms, except artillery, and they are expected to give the national army forces considerable trouble in guerrilla tactics, but it is doubted if they will make a determined stand before reaching Cork.

Telegraph lines from Cork were partially restored yesterday and messages reaching Dublin indicated that the city was comparatively quiet. Some travelers arriving in Dublin from Cork said most of the people were strongly in sympathy with the Provisional Government but that they were overawed by republican troops.

Control Limerick. The national forces are said to be in complete control of Limerick except for a few insurgent snipers. Many business buildings were said to have been destroyed by fire which spread from the Strand and other barracks, ignited by irregulars. Most of the insurgent soldiers apparently escaped.

Reports reaching here through Free State channels charge the republicans with having looted the Limerick stores of practically everything valuable. The loss is said to have amounted to several thousands pounds.

Many business buildings were said to have been destroyed by fire which spread from the Strand and other barracks, ignited by irregulars. Most of the insurgent soldiers apparently escaped.

Word reached here early to-day that the national forces captured Castlereagh, County Roscommon, yesterday, after shelling the local headquarters of the irregulars, who surrendered.

Attackers Retired. Heavy fighting occurred early to-day when a party of men armed with rifles and machine guns attacked the Four Courts Hotel, adjoining the ruins of the Four Courts Building, now held by national army forces. The national troops returned the fire and the attackers finally withdrew. No casualties were reported.

A SUNDAY PROTEST. London, July 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Wesleyan Methodist Conference at Sheffield has passed a resolution protesting against the decision of the London County Council which permits Sunday games in the parks.

ST. CHARLES'S CO. CUP TO MAINLAND

72nd Battalion Takes Honors at Heals

(By Times Staff Representative)
Heads, July 22.—Lost by a hairs breadth the 16th Scottish took second place in the St. Charles's Cup team match when the 72nd Battalion, Vancouver, defeated the 16th Scottish, the 16th Scottish 968, showed better aggregate shots at the 600 yards range than the latter, and secured first prize. The team consisted of five men. The shield was donated for perpetual challenge by the St. Charles's Condensing Company, and was won last year by the V.R.A. The 16th Scottish secured a prize of $12 for this event, which was so closely contested.

But to them goes the Laurier bugle which they won with a total score of 2,148, with a team of five men. They not only got the bugle, which was presented by Lieutenant-General Laurier in 1903, but a money prize also of $10. The V.R.A. of Vancouver were last year's winners. In this event also, as in many others, the Victoria entries came in for the greater number of places.

A total score of 43 in the rapid firing otherwise known as the "mad minute," by Major R. M. Blair, increased the honor list for Vancouver considerably. Fifteen rounds was shot in one minute. Excitement was rife, and it is this that generally spoils the scores of most entries. Following the first prize shot taken by Major Blair, of Vancouver, ten Victoria men came in the list for the next best, the twelfth prize going to a Vancouver man. Sixteen Victoria men got in on the money in this event, giving a majority of places to Vancouver. The Terminal City secured six places in this match. The 200 yards range was used for this event, and a possible was looked for from Major T. Cunningham, who secured a possible at Ottawa in 1916, but his score was low, the rifle jamming on the refill.

PATHFINDERS QUARREL OVER MOTOR MEDALS

Joint Awards for Yellowhead Pass Trips Start Trouble

When the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau awarded gold medals to both parties of pathfinders who recently drove from Edmonton to Victoria through the Yellowhead Pass it started a row which will take not a little settling. The two motor parties are now quarrelling over the award and, worse still, the individual men composing the parties are squabbling over the possession of the Bureau's medals. George L. Warren, commissioner of the bureau, has received a big file of correspondence on the subject and is making efforts to settle the trouble. He announced to-day, however, that the dispute had reached such proportions that he would do nothing further until he had received complete details by mail from Edmonton, home of the dissatisfied pathfinders.

The trouble arose over the fact that the two pathfinding cars did not take the same route to the coast. Gordon-Sims party, driving a Ford, reached the coast first but only with a detour into Washington State. The Niemeyer-Silver party, in an Overland, came later but traveled by an all-Canadian route. Medals were awarded to both parties and Mr. Warren has written to Edmonton to assure the winners that neither award was in any sense a consolation prize. Both parties, he says, were entitled to recognition of their achievements.

FOOD SHORTAGE FOR STOCK LOOMS, McDONALD WARNS

It looks like a hard winter coming for livestock in Western Canada and along the Pacific Coast, according to the warning issued to-day by W. T. McDonald, livestock commissioner, who has returned from judging horses at the Edmonton and Calgary fairs and from an inspection of crops in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

While in Alberta Mr. McDonald was guest at the Prince of Wales's ranch, sixty miles from Calgary. "A little crop is good, but the irrigated sections of Alberta, but drought has got it in the other districts," Mr. McDonald reported. "In the dry feed will likely be very scarce and the probabilities are that with such conditions prices will be correspondingly high."

Mr. McDonald said that the livestock exhibits at the Prairie shows were good and many of them were being brought to the Coast for the fall shows here.

HART TAKES TENTH OF HORSE RACE BETS; PEEPS WELL KNOWN BY CIVIL SERVANTS

Arrangements to collect the ten per cent. tax on racetrack betting at the Brighouse meet in Vancouver, which opened to-day, have been made by the Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance. The tax will be collected by officers who will take the Province's title from the takings of the machines.

The Dominion Government also gets 10 per cent.

Ontario racing associations have successfully invoked aid of the courts to restrain collection of a similar tax, but the B.C. Act is different and there is no dispute on the part of racing associations here to contest the point with the Government.

A. Noble, of Kamloops, has been appointed superintendent of the Provincial Home for the Aged at Kamloops, as successor to the late Hugh MacLean, the Hon. J. D. MacLean, Provincial Secretary, announced to-day.

Mr. Noble has been acting as superintendent for the last few months, during the illness of the late Mr. MacLean.

Mr. Noble is the son of A. Noble, an old pioneer of the North Thompson district and has lived in the Kamloops district for 35 years. He is 46 years of age and married.

He has had a varied experience, such as farming and office work, and has for some years been connected with the provincial service at Kamloops.

"Mr. Noble is highly esteemed in the district in which he lives, and the Government believe that they have an excellent man to carry out the responsible duty of supervising the care of the old pioneers of the Province," Dr. MacLean said.

Bertram H. Peeps, field representative of the Retail Merchants' Association of B.C., who has been missing since the retailers' convention here signed, is well known at the Parliament Buildings.

Shortly after his arrival in this country from England he went to the buildings looking for a job. He was well groomed, and was employed for a time as a chairman with a survey party. Later he married an American nurse, it is said.

BULGARS AWAIT RULING BY ALLIED COMMISSION

Sofia, July 22.—The Bulgarian Government is awaiting whatever action the Reparations Commission may take on its refusal to accept the demand made by the Commission for the signing of a convention acceding control of Bulgarian finances, taxes, and revenues in return for the postponement of reparations payment for three years. The delay accorded by the Commission will expire to-night.

BRITISH COAL IS SHIPPED TO U.S.

West-bound Cargoes Increase in Number

Philadelphia Public Utilities Take Supplies

London, July 22.—The demand for ships to convey coal to the United States is increasing daily. Many steamships have been loaded in the United Kingdom this week for sailing to various American ports, the freight rate being from eight to ten shillings a ton.

Lloyd's shipping list to-day says some shipowners are endeavoring to force a fixed rate of nine shillings a ton, but as United States Shipping Board steamships are willing to come over and load at seven shillings six pence, the prospects of the higher rate being paid.

The American demand for coal has caused a scarcity of tonnage in some sections. In Cardiff, Newcastle and Middlesbrough the heavy bookings for all kinds of coal for July shipment to the United States have caused an advance of from six pence to a shilling a ton. In Cardiff export firms alone are said to have booked 300,000 tons, and Newcastle firms 150,000 tons.

Philadelphia, July 22.—Several cargoes of British coal purchased by the local public utilities corporations will arrive here within a fortnight, it became known to-day. Approximately 25,000 tons was purchased a week ago by the Philadelphia Electric Company, while other public utilities placed large orders at the same time. In addition, it is stated, about 50,000 tons of steam coal is consigned to brokers and local chartering agents.

DUE TO STRIKE, COAL SUPPLY CAUSE OF ANXIETY

Washington, July 22.—According to authorities here, the coal strike in the United States, unless soon settled, will make it impossible to furnish an adequate coal supply for the United States. The coal strike in the Great Lakes section and Northwest States, and in addition, parts of Canada will suffer.

This applies especially to those parts of Canada tributary to the Great Lakes, which receive large amounts of coal from the United States. Some experts declare that already so much time has been lost and production is so curtailed that it will be impossible, even with the mines running full time through the fall, to mine the quantities needed.

AGED WATCHMAN WAS MURDERED

Killed in Jam Factory at Winona, Ont.

Hamilton, Ont., July 22.—A brutal murder was disclosed in the jam factory of E. D. Smith & Son, Winona, this morning when the body of the aged watchman, Thomas E. McEwen, 77, was found in a pool of blood. A bullet had been fired through his forehead.

While there were no signs of a struggle, the motive of the murder became apparent when it was discovered that the vault in the office of the company was blown open and an attempt made to open the smaller safe in the interior. All the murderers got was a small sum of cash.

BRITISH TEST TO DETERMINE ELEVEN FOR SOUTH AFRICA

London, July 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—After three days of brilliant cricket, probably the most important match of the season which is regarded as a semi-official trial for the selection of a side to visit South Africa next winter, the match at Lord's ended to-day in the tamest fashion. The players, in the first innings made 330 runs, Hobbs contributing 140.

With characteristic brilliance the Englishmen sprang a surprise with 430, Young of Cambridge University making the magnificent score of 160, Carr 83 and Mann 60.

The players replied with a score of 334 for six wickets, and declared the innings. Russell and Mastrery 162; Hobbs 45, Wooley 74.

The gentlemen had only ninety minutes to bat with no chance of winning, and consequently they proceeded with great caution. At the end of an hour they had only 29 runs for one wicket. Then rain stopped the match by a half hour.

BASEBALL.

In a very interesting baseball game last night the Un-Tumbles defeated the Mets by a score of 19-4. McCoy pitched very good ball for the Mets until relieved by Kay. Ozzard, pitching for the Un-Tumbles, twirled good ball and kept the Mets' sluggers in control. The batteries were: Mets, McCoy, Kay, Ozzard, Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Sample box free. ## MOST WONDERFUL DOG'S HOUSE IN WORLD FOR QUEEN

Prominent British Artists Engaged on Gift; Baths of Jasper

London, July 22.—The most wonderful dog's house in the world, the one which the leading artists and architects in the land have combined to present to the Queen, is nearly complete. It floors are constructed in four sections to the designs of Sir Edwin Lutyens, and these four sections have now been pieced together.

It is a miniature English mansion, complete to the smallest detail. There is a hall bell, a knocker, a handle, and a doorman.

In the reception rooms there is a screen to ward off draughts, a box for the Yuletide logs, a tiny basket for the pump, and a most comfortable armchair for the dog. The finish of the tiny furniture is perfect.

One of the sitting rooms is a copy of the King's Library at Leinster Palace. The floors are of marble, and there are real pictures on the walls.

The electric lift is built to carry two dogs, and the library contains 100 Morocco bound MSS, contributed by leading authors. There is a garage, a garden, chests crammed with real clothes, real bedrooms, and real bathrooms.

The workers engaged on the task have in many cases not known that what they were making was for the royal dog's home, the principals of the firm having been sworn to secrecy.

Baths of Jasper.
Attention is now being devoted to the furnishing, upholstery, decorating, plumbing, and other details. So great is the consideration for accurate detail and artistic perfection before the house is finished.

Recently much of the marble flooring, the white and green marble staircase, and the marble doorways leading from the hall to the living rooms and domestic quarters, were installed.

The classical domed roof above the staircase was installed by Mr. William Nicholson. Italian walnut pillars and paneling, for the King's library, the oaken bookcases with their sliding glass doors, where numerous volumes bound in red Morocco leather and containing priceless manuscripts in the handwriting of Britain's literati, are ready to be assembled.

Baths and wash-hand-stands are already in evidence in the upper floors. Baths and mantelpieces are alike of silver and marble, the mantelpieces having panels of precious jade.

Sir George Frampton's Statues.
The ceilings of the principal saloons are fitted into grooves so that the artists who are to paint them may do so in their studios. Sir George Frampton has, it is understood, completed his statues which will adorn the balustrade on the outside of the house.

The paneling and the domestic quarters, the linen cupboards and passages—so perfect in detail that the artists and architects of the Renaissance, were they alive to-day, might well envy the services of such skilled artisans—are almost complete.

The Queen's dog's house will go down to posterity as the embodiment of everything that was meant by Culture in 1922. The gift is purely personal one to the Queen herself. Private donation has enabled the enterprise to be carried out; public donation, after its completion, should be publicly exhibited, will enable a number of charitable organizations to benefit from it.

GOD TRADING ON PUBLIC MARKET

Brisk Demand for Tomatoes; Fish Prices Stationary

Trading was very brisk at the week-end session of the Victoria Public Market. Tomatoes are still selling at the price of 15c per pound. Butter is still quoted at 55c a pound. Cherries have dropped. Biggs sell at 20c per pound having fallen 5c since Wednesday. Loganberries are selling at 10c per basket, or 3 baskets for 25c. Raspberries are still selling at 30c for a two-pound box. Black currants are selling two boxes for 25c.

Beets have dropped, the quotation now being 3 bunches for 10c. Carrots, green onions and lettuce, are still being called for by the public.

The fish prices are still remaining stationary, but a few fish being the price of white Spring salmon which is now selling two pounds for 25c.

Fresh eggs were quoted at 25c per dozen and new potatoes 5c per pound.

Much interest was aroused in exhibits of Pekinese puppies, fox terrier puppies and malted kittens for sale.

LORD FORRES WRONGFULLY BLAMED

London, July 22.—Ronald McNeill, Unionist member, in a statement in the House of Commons yesterday, unreservedly withdrew his allegations against Lord Forres, which he had made in the course of the debate on the bestowal of honors, when he charged the firm of Balfour, Williamson & Company, of which Lord Forres is the head, of doing business in South America with "laxity in relation to trading with the enemy."

Mr. McNeill expressed regret for his allegations involving Lord Forres, but said he had nothing to withdraw regarding Lord Waring, against whom he had made certain other allegations.

D. C. Coleman, C. P. R. Vice-President, Speaks of Canadian Conditions

Calgary, July 22.—"Negotiations are proceeding in a proper legal manner, and there is no reason to assume at the moment that any crisis will develop."

This was the way D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway in charge of western lines, summed up the railroad shippers' threatened strike in Canada. Regarding the situation on the other side of the line, the vice-president stated he had no first-hand information and was not therefore prepared to make any comment.

TO BUILD UP TRADE WITHIN EMPIRE

Premier of South Australia Urges Co-operation

London, July 22.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Sir H. W. Barwell, Premier of South Australia, addressing the Chamber of Commerce at Adelaide, according to a Reuters cable, urged trade co-operation between the Dominions and Great Britain. He said that inquiries he had made in London showed the urgent need of reorganizing the marketing of Australian produce. He instanced the marketing of fruit, butter and beef, which would presently be engaging the attention of the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth, Rt. Hon. W. M. Hughes, and the exporters.

FURTHER EVIDENCE IN MACAROW TRIAL

Merchants' Bank Hearing in Montreal Branch Failed to Make Bad Debt Reports

Montreal, July 22.—That the semi-annual reports on bad and doubtful debts which managers were circulated to send into the head office, were not compiled by the Montreal branch, was evidence given by William J. Finucane, a member of the branch staff, here yesterday in the course of the trial of D. C. Macarow, former general manager of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, who is accused of having been guilty of false and deceptive statements in the October, 1921, return of the bank to the Government. Mr. Finucane, examined by Charles A. Wilson, K.C. for the prosecution, said that his office had been too busy to get the work done and that he considered he had more important work to do. He had not spoken to Mr. Macarow of the matter, not considering that he should do so unless specifically asked. Between April and October there had accumulated more than $1,000,000 worth of bad and doubtful debts in his branch, due to revaluation of securities. He had spoken of them only in a general way to Mr. Macarow and did not think that he had mentioned the amount. The September return, never accepted, showed an apparent loss of $2,045,376.38. The case was adjourned till Tuesday.

Loans on account of passage money will be repayable in monthly instalments and will be free of interest.

PROTESTS MADE BY PHYSICIANS

British Practitioners, Court Witnesses, Want Protection for Patients' Testimony

London, July 22 (Canadian Press Cable)—The outstanding question as to whether physicians should be compelled to divulge a patient's confidential statement is again to come to the front, owing to a succession of recent criminal cases in which medical men have been called to testify. All testimony of this kind has usually been attended by the strongest protests from the medical profession. The subject yielded nine hours of discussion at the opening session yesterday of the British Medical Association Congress, when a resolution was passed that the association should support in every possible way any member whom the council, after consideration of the circumstances, deems justified in refusing to disclose any information obtained in the exercise of his professional duties, and further that as it is an essential principle of medical conduct that information be not divulged without the patient's consent, special consideration from the courts is desirable for medical witnesses.

"EARL" NOW FACES CHARGE OF THEFT

Man Who Posed as Peer in Montreal Taken to Michigan

Montreal, July 22.—A man who is alleged to have posed as the Earl of Dunblayne at a hotel here last May, as A. J. Walker-Craig during the first part of the present month, and as "Schwartz" on another occasion, was arrested yesterday on a theft charge laid against him in the interests of Mary E. Miller, of Charlveton, Mich., who alleges that the "earl" swindled her out of $500. He waived extradition.

According to the police, the accused man promoted an insurance company and subsequently failed to account to the United States Government for monies supposed to be paid it. It is alleged he got away with nearly $420,000.

While in Montreal the "Earl of Dunblayne" gave an elaborate interview to a local paper concerning conditions in England.

ANTIPODEANS MAKE WIRELESS PLANS

Government and Company Agreement in Australia Causes a Resignation

London, July 22 (Canadian Press Cable)—A Reuters dispatch from Melbourne says that a possible cause of friction in the carrying out of an agreement between the Federal Government and the Amalgamated Wireless Company of Australia arising out of the appointment by the company of Sir Thomas Hughes of Sydney to the board of directors, has been avoided, while Farber has been avoided by the resignation of Sir Thomas. The appointment was not acceptable to the Minister, and the matter formed the subject of a long and vigorous debate in the House of Representatives this week. During the debate the Government was criticized by the Labor members. The Labor amendment was rejected.

BABY CARRIAGE CONTAINED WHISKY

New York, July 22.—David Ferber wheeled his baby carriage down Fourth Street yesterday and had so many men looking under the top to see what it contained that the police got suspicious. They looked in, took David to the police station, and there told the lieutenant that while Ferber had a carriage and a bottle, he had no baby. He was selling liquor out of the bottle at 50 cents a "shot." It was declared, so he was taken to court and held in $1,000 bail for the grand jury on a charge of violation of the prohibition law.

Have the sick the right to get well?

THE Chiropractors of British Columbia are being persecuted. Several have been thrown into jail—many have been heavily fined—and 13 are being prosecuted at the present time with jail sentences practically inevitable, if present conditions continue to be tolerated by the people of British Columbia.

The medical men of British Columbia are behind this persecution. Their object is to force the Chiropractor to cease rendering aid to the sick and the suffering. This, in spite of the fact that hundreds—yes, thousands—of men, women and children—right here in British Columbia—have testified that the Chiropractors have alleviated their sufferings—in many cases making permanent cures—after the medical men had failed. Here are the simple facts:

The Medical Association of British Columbia have framed a certain law. This law states that no person may render aid to the sick or the suffering for gain, unless that person passes a certain examination as provided by the Medical Association themselves. This examination requires a knowledge of Medicines and other forms of drugs. The Chiropractor, not using Drugs in any form whatsoever, has acquired no knowledge as required by their examination. Consequently, it is impossible for the Chiropractor to qualify according to the Medical Men's standard.

It is at once apparent that the Medical men have thus created restrictions which give them the sole right to attempt to alleviate the sufferings of the human race. In other words, you must either get well through use of Drugs or continue to suffer or die.

But we do not believe that it should be left to the Medical Men; nor to the Chiropractors, nor to any other profession, to say who is to alleviate the sufferings of mankind. We claim that the SICK HAVE THE RIGHT TO GET WELL in any manner they choose. Certainly, no single group of men shall take away the fundamental and constitutional right of every man and woman to utilize all means available in restoring Health. Is it common-sense that a person whom doctors have "given up" shall be debarred from seeking other means of recovery?

Under our Canadian law a man has the right to think for himself. He makes his own decision in the small matters of everyday life, in business, politics, in religion. Shall he then be debarred for the sake of the financial interest of a certain class from thinking for himself, and deciding for himself, when it comes to Systems of Cure?

Having a firm belief in the common-sense of Canadian men and women, and knowing that our cause is just and right, we take this means of turning the white light of publicity upon our case. Our confidence in your sense of British fairplay compels us to believe that we shall have Justice.

CANADA'S RAILWAYS.

When the resignation of the Board of Directors of the Grand Trunk Railway follows that of the Canadian National directorate it will be possible for the Dominion Government to give serious consideration to the reorganization of the policy of general control and management of our railways. It does not follow that the country will dispense with the services of those officials who are considered to possess the requisite administrative ability for further successful duty under the unified proposal. The Government will be guided in this respect by what shall be shown to be necessary in the best interests of the country.

There is nothing new about Canada's railway problem. The annual losses represent an imposition upon the taxpayers of the Dominion of anywhere between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000. These figures alone dictate the necessity to deal with the question in the most courageous fashion possible. Unified control is obviously a first essential and it should be the duty of the Government to find the best man obtainable to direct this part of Canada's business. If this country is unable to produce a qualified man for the post there must be no mistaken sentiment about going elsewhere. He must be well paid. His annual stipend would be an economy if it equalled that of the whole of the Cabinet as long as the railways were delivered from their present mess and showed the way to a self-supporting and profit producing basis.

Canada's national railways represent more than half the railway mileage of the country. To administer them without the competition of the most efficiently managed private system on the Continent would be no small task. To rescue them from their present predicament in the face of this may well challenge the best railway experience. It is no ordinary business that will face the official whom the Government shall select for this gigantic task. Hand in hand with the precise task of transportation control and management is that of the general development of the country from which the business must come before present conditions can hope to show signs of material improvement. Because of this highly important consideration Canada must emulate the big private corporations and be prepared to pay as highly for the right man as any of them.

Whatever policy shall be formulated under unified control and management it must be remembered that the railway problem of this country actually is our biggest problem. Only by the introduction of something akin to genius in management will it be possible for this Dominion to weather the financial storm to whose severity our iron ways contribute so heavily.

A GOOD SIGN.

Although Vancouver Island cannot reasonably complain of its treatment by the Dominion Government, commercial and agricultural bodies in this part of the Province will be interested in the statements made by the Dominion Ministers who are at present on the coast. Their promise that the West would experience a more generally sympathetic hearing at the hands of the new Government than appeared to be the case with its predecessors in office is a welcome announcement. It is obvious that the officials in question were not in a position to make specific reference to such benefits as will now be expected to follow. At the same time when the various controversial problems that have long engaged the attention of governmental authorities in the four Western Provinces have been adjusted British Columbia's interest will become intensified. Economic conditions in this section of the Dominion are largely influenced by the state of the commercial barometer in those Provinces immediately to the East of the Rockies. Indirectly associated with their desire for the return of their natural resources is the request of British Columbia that the railway belt and the Peace River block be placed in a similar category. This Province's position is naturally different; but the view of the local Legislature on a number of occasions has been that a costly duplication of administration could be avoided were these lands under the jurisdiction of the provincial authorities. In respect of such other matters as may demand a practical co-operative arrangement this Province will be found ready to do its share at all times. Meanwhile the Ministers' announcement in Vancouver will doubtless be followed by concrete reminders and proposals from the West from time to time.

HER BITTER PILL.

Of course Dr. Karl Helfferich objects to Allied supervision of Germany's financing. It would be difficult for the present Government to agree to anything that would satisfy him. He belongs to the old regime and refuses to understand that the creditor nations are in a position to exact their own terms.

Germany is very much in the same position as a concern in the hands of a receiver. She possesses all the machinery and the ability to conduct her business at a profit if she be given a breathing spell in which to recover from the consequences of her own folly. But the indulgence of creditors and assistance from the bank under such circumstances are always conditional upon supervision. That is precisely Germany's position. The Allied nations are apprehensive of the effect of seventy-million people floundering about in the bankruptcy court and they are ready to prevent such an economic convulsion on the recognized commercial basis. It is to their interest to do so and much more to Germany's interest to accept the proposal.

Accommodating the debtor nation for the time being does not abolish the final reckoning. It is a recognition that there is mutual benefit in delaying it. Dr. Karl Helfferich will have to swallow what Count von Bernstorff has designated "this bitter pill."

RASH STATEMENTS.

Just as British Labor appeared to be on the eve of convincing the people of Great Britain that it possessed men fully capable of assuming the responsibility of government its radical element was successful in wielding substantial influence over the rank and file while it temporized with imported Bolshevik doctrines. It was during that fatal period—fatal for the hopes of organized Labor—that the country went through a costly railway strike and a still more costly cessation of coal mining. As tests of the respective power of Capital and Labor they provided interesting situations and the net result was not very far from a draw. As tests of strength between public opinion and attempted coercion by a minority they were pitiable examples of Labor's folly. Each incident blighted the opportunity which appeared to be getting near the grasp of men of moderate views and administrative ability within its ranks.

At the same time nothing has taken place that would justify the statement of Sir Alfred Mond to the effect that if the Laborites came into power tomorrow the banks would put an embargo on finance and financial operations would cease. Such a declaration could be attacked from many angles; but it is only necessary to point out that the banking institution that went out of its way to conduct its affairs in manner contrary to the expressed wish of the people would be digging its own grave. When Labor governs Great Britain it will do so by popular instruction and not before. Such is the procedure laid down in the Constitution. It may also be pointed out that new Ministers find little difficulty in dropping into their duties because a large army of department officials are there to do the actual work of government. These officials' concern about their departmental prerogative is an agency that wields tremendous influence over all but the most experienced parliamentarian. Apart from this important consideration there is no reason to believe that the advent of a Labor Government would entail blue ruin for the Empire. Responsibility is a steady and an educative factor. Australia's banks did not close with the advent of a Labor Government.

PREPARE IN TIME.

Several months will elapse before the British Columbia Legislature will assemble for its next session. Matters suggested for discussion at this stage will probably be forgotten before the official call is issued to the members. But now is the time to impress upon the Government and each individual representative the importance of dealing with forest protection. Experience in recent weeks has proved with impressive force and grim tragedy how woefully inadequate the present system has been in the face of conditions that may or may not be repeated next year. Nobody will suggest for one moment that the Forest Branch has not done everything within its power to limit destruction. None the less a general equipment that has justified its existence under normal circumstances has been found wanting during the recent and continued extraordinary period. It has been pointed out before that many a small outbreak could have been subdued if it had been detected in its early stages and promptly dealt with. But the Department cannot place itself in this position without aerial patrol. On that account the Legislature should consider the advisability of authorizing the Government to purchase equipment of this kind. It should be a good deal cheaper in the long run.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This part of Vancouver Island has reason to be proud of the fact that it has added loganberries to its list of exports to the Prairie Provinces.

When the aerial Derby takes place round London on August bank holiday one of the entrants will be a machine that is expected to make a speed of four miles an hour. If aerial navigation makes much further progress a flight of the imagination will be a comparatively slow affair.

According to a yarn from Paris moving picture actors are sniffing cocaine in order to make their eyes more brilliant and photogenic. The evolution of the screen seems to have been made responsible for many things that were never dreamed of in the days of the magic lantern.

At a luncheon gathering of the English-speaking Union in London the other day Mr. James W. Gerard, formerly American Ambassador in Berlin, said he believed that Great Britain would be lending money to the United States in fifteen years because of the result of the skill of British financiers and British salesmanship. In any case if this optimistic condition should not be realized Mr. Gerard and his companions may rest assured that John Bull will settle Uncle Sam's bill in due course.

THAT RESOLUTION.

To the Editor:—There was an article in last Saturday's Times concerning two resolutions of interest to the public. The first resolution aimed to prevent the "Robbery of Stores." That might have been the intention of the man who moved such a resolution, and it sounds fair from a retailer's point of view and also it would be a great asset to the Retail Merchants' Association should they secure the necessary legislation while at the same time it will be a great liability to other people. In fact it looks to me as though the Retail Merchants' Association would like the furniture and piano movers and express men of British Columbia to use their time and energy for the benefit of the Retail Merchants' Association without any remuneration. Now, if the furniture piano movers, and express men, have to report to the police every article, furniture, piano, etc., they move, some of them would have to hire a clerk to make out a report and deliver it to the police. This would take about one hour a day. Who would pay for this? Would the Retail Merchants' Association or the Government? If the Government the taxes would increase, and they are already far too high for many people to pay.

Now, as to credit I fail to see where the hotel and boarding-house keepers have any more legal powers than the Retail Merchants' Association or even as much, because there is no law which compels the retailer to give credit. I think there is a law which compels the hotel or boarding-house keepers to feed his guests, which is a promise. But the hotel and boarding-house keepers are entitled to a little legal consideration. But the men who place notices in their stores such as "Cash only," "No Credit Given," and then give credit do so to oblige their friends or themselves and therefore are not entitled to any legal consideration. I see no reason why the Retail Merchants' Association should be allowed to throw its obligations on to or make a free collection agency of the furniture, piano movers and express men of British Columbia. Hoping some one who has more time than I will give this matter a dry consideration.

PREMIER-ELECT OF MANITOBA IS EXPERT FARMER

With the position of Livestock Commissioner.

When the University of Saskatchewan was opened he accepted the professorship of Field Husbandry, having supplemented his work at Guelph and his practical training with a year of post-graduate work in United States universities.

An Author

His work in field husbandry at Saskatchewan made him known all over this continent as an authority on the production of field crops under dry conditions. He is the author of two books which are regarded as standard works in their line, namely, "Dry Farming in Western Canada," and "Crop Production in Western Canada." In addition, he is the author of no fewer than twenty-five pamphlets on various subjects pertaining to field husbandry.

Mr. Bracken was chosen leader of the Farmers' Party at a meeting of the Farmers' Union here yesterday. The choice was unanimous. Mr. Bracken's acceptance of the leadership involves, of course, his resignation as principal of the Agricultural College.

Standing of Parties

With the completion of the election count in Winnipeg city, the standing of the parties in the Legislature is shown to be as follows:

United Farmers 24, Progressives 1, Independents 8, Liberals 7, Conservatives 6, Labor 6, deferred 3—total 55. In the last House at dissolution there were 13 Independent Farmers, 21 Liberals, 7 Conservatives, 10 Laborites and 4 Independents.

All of the organized parties lost to the Farmers for whom it was their first provincial campaign. With the support of R. W. Craig, the Winnipeg Progressive, and conceding them two of the deferred elections, the Farmers will have twenty-seven seats, or an actual majority, but there is a very general opinion that independent support will be forthcoming in sufficient measure to relieve the situation of an embarrassment to the Government now about to be formed.

Winnipeg

The Winnipeg city representation in the new Legislature will be as follows:

Progressives—R. W. Craig, K.C. Liberal—Robert Jacob and Mrs. Arthur Rogers. Conservatives—W. Sanford Evans and J. T. Haig. Independents—J. Kensington Downes. Labor and Socialists—F. J. Dixon, W. Evans, J. McQueen and S. F. Farmer.

Thirty of the forty-three candidates who contested the ten seats in Winnipeg lost their deposits.

authorities except for press summaries. Thus it would be impossible for the ratepayer to indicate in the space offered by a postcard with what portions he disagrees. To obviate this difficulty Mayor Marchant will take the report out to his Summer home to-day and spend the week-end writing titles over what he considers are the various distinct sections of the document. In addition he will number each paragraph. This will enable the ratepayer to indicate any paragraph by number. Even then, as Dr. Shortt's recommendations are hidden in a mass of matter, it will be difficult to indicate any separate and distinct point. When the straw vote plan was originally proposed it was expected that Dr. Shortt would include in his report a summary with numbered recommendations but this he has not done. However, Mr. Dean feels that the sentiment of the public in regard to the Shortt recommendations should be tested.

The postcard vote plan, the Mayor said to-day, would cost the city about $150.

Proposes School Census.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Dean laid before the Mayor plans for a thorough canvass of Victoria's school population and particularly the High School student body to find out the students' views on the good and bad points in the present education system. In addition, all students would be asked what they intend to do in life and whether their school work is helping to fit them for their work. This scheme, it is hoped, will reveal methods by which the school system can be made more useful in training boys and girls for the work by which they will make their living. It will also indicate, it is hoped, the subjects which could be profitably scrapped. Mr. Dean's proposal rises out of those sections of the Shortt report dealing with school finances. The Mayor said that he considered that the scheme included valuable points.

EAGLE HAWK WINS LIVERPOOL TROPHY

London, July 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Liverpool Cup, run yesterday over a course of one mile and three furlongs, was won by Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen's four-year-old bay colt Eagle Hawk. Lord Manton's four-year-old brown colt Stratford was second and the Duke of Portland's four-year-old chestnut colt Evander finished third. Twelve started.

Eagle Hawk won by a length and a half, and Stratford beat Evander for the place by a length. The winner went to the post at odds of 4 to 1 against, while Stratford was quoted at 6 to 1 against. Evander was 100 to 8 against.

GUIDERS LEARN OF CHILD PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. Barker, of Happy Valley, Among Yesterday's Lecturers

The hoisting of the flag and the reading of the Guide Laws made an effective introduction to company drill and inspection at the Girl Guide Officers' Training School yesterday morning.

A lecture, dwelling chiefly on First Aid, for officers expecting to take their Guides camping after the close of this course, was given by Dr. Barker, of Happy Valley, in the afternoon session gave a very interesting and stirring talk on "Child Psychology," pointing out how environment from infancy affects the character of the child. Instruction was given in Camp Craft by Miss Burges, commandant of the West of England Training School, which will prove of great advantage to the officers, who have been handicapped by the lack of first hand knowledge. The evening was spent in folk dancing.

FRENCH COUNTESS AIDS WAR ORPHANS

Comtesse d'Audiffret to Lecture Here on French Conditions

Destruction, reconstruction, are the topics that ever and anon return to the minds of those who have not entirely lost sight of the terrible catastrophe the world was brought to France. Those who visited her front recently have seen somewhat disheartened by seeing how slowly the reconstruction is proceeding, notwithstanding the wonderful patience and perseverance of the French peasantry. The capital required to build up and to cultivate what was destroyed is enormous. But funds for this purpose are very small. But what is the destruction of the mines, of factories, of hundreds and hundreds of miles of prosperous land in comparison with the harm done to the splendid Gallic race that has been so cruelly decimated. A population of 36,000,000 has been lessened by 2,500,000 of men in the prime of their lives. 1,500,000 were slain on the battlefields, 1,000,000 returned maimed or infirm, disabled for life.

Have the visitors to France who saw the disaster of the front visited the homes of the families of those men who fought for the world's liberty? If so, their hearts must have failed in seeing the homes of desolation in which so many little children are brought up. It is to save these little ones from perishing in this time of famine, that the French Relief fund for children, victims of the war, Pro Infancia, Pro Patria (le Souvenir Français) is accomplishing a real missionary's work since the last seven years, undergoing the hardships of incessant travelling, the terrible uphill work of stirring up dying out interest, but doing the work because it has to be done, because on it depend the lives and future of many a child.

Countess d'Audiffret arrived in Victoria a few days ago and is accredited by the French Government and church authorities of France and is specially recommended to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and Mrs. Nichol, as to many of the prominent members of Victoria's society. She intends giving a lecture about the condition of France and its children, with the intention of having it followed some days later by an entertainment quite novel in its style, the profits of which are to be shared between the French Relief Fund and the children of the returned Canadian soldiers of B. C. for France asks no better but to prove in every way, be it small, her gratitude for the splendid help she received from the brave Canadian boys.

Immigration

The pioneer work of the association to meet the needs of immigration after the close of the war led to the creating of a women's division of the Department of Immigration by the Government, three former association secretaries now being engaged in this work.

Foreign Work

There are now five secretaries in the field, two in China, two in India and one in Japan, with a prospect of another for Japan. Miss Kauffman having created a deep interest in Ontario towards this end when she was home on furlough. Sixteen associations are contributing to the foreign department. The Hon. Mrs. Forster, of Japan, a visitor to the convention, stated that the girls of China and Japan were adopting Western ideas, but jumping at things they knew nothing about but think they need. Girls are just on the verge of making serious mistakes and the Y. W. C. A. can supply the need by providing a place suitable for them to discuss their problems freely under right leadership.

Finance

Miss Julia Lee, of the American National board, prefaced her talk on finance by giving the following definition of the Y. W. C. A.: "It is one of the greatest constructive forces for girls. It means flexible, Christian, democratic comradeship and is part of a big national movement of Christian comradeship reaching round the world."

The Budget

In speaking of the national budget for the coming year, Miss Forster, national secretary, stated this would be $70,000 as a minimum, and it is hoped the local associations will raise fifty per cent of this. Last year they raised thirty-one per cent of the budget. The whole question of association finance was fully discussed.

Reorganization

The question of reorganization was gone into thoroughly, the convention unanimously agreeing on the forming of provincial committees which would link up the local associations more closely with the Dominion Council. These provincial committees will be advisory to the Dominion Council and will recommend where new work should be opened up, as suggested where new departments of work might be added to established work. It will do preliminary work in creating interest in new centres and stimulating a desire to have some form of association work developed in suitable localities. National secretaries will help with consummation of this work.

Clubs

An interesting demonstration was given by the clubs of the Toronto association, which showed the value there are in character building and how much real joy the girls get in this way. These clubs comprised the dramatic, industrial, gymnasium, Bible study, hospital committee and school "Y. W. Britannia" Girls Club, Onkwin (business girls) reading club, swimming club, leaders' club, self-governing girls' club and the Steadfast Club, a club which aims to unite all phases of the "Y" work.

Foreign Born Girl

It was decided that the association plan to get in touch with the foreign born girl, but that in so doing they first ascertain what is being done by other organizations, so that there may be no overlapping.

Industrial Work

A request was made that the Dominion Council form an industrial committee with representation of girls from the east, centre and west local secretaries and industrial experts.

Inspiring addresses were given by Dr. Trevor Davies, of Metropolitan Methodist Church, Toronto, and Dr.

HEARD EXCELLENT REPORT OF Y.W.C.A. DOMINION COUNCIL

Progress of Great Work Described by Miss De Wolfe

A special meeting of the Board of Directors and interested friends of the Association was held in the Y. W. C. A., Yates Street, Friday evening, to hear the report of Miss De Wolfe, the general secretary, who was the appointed delegate to the Y. W. C. A. Triennial Convention held in Toronto May 18-20. Mrs. Bishop, president, was in the chair.

In her report Miss De Wolfe stated that through the courtesy of the Toronto Association all the meetings of the convention were held at their Recreational and Administrative Building, 21 McGill Street, and all possible was done to make the delegates feel at home. The meetings of the convention were presided over by Mrs. R. W. Rowell, acting president of the Dominion Council, a woman of charming personality and outstanding executive ability. Mrs. Rowell explained that this responsibility had fallen on her shoulders through the resignation of the president, Lady Falconer, due to ill health. The delegates to the convention numbered 36, representing the Dominion-wide work from Halifax on the East to Victoria on the West. Greetings were extended from the Toronto Association by Mrs. Chas. Stark, president, and were responded to on behalf of the delegates by Mrs. Dunlop, of Ottawa.

Mrs. Rowell in an interesting survey of the past three years' work of the Dominion Council stated this had been a severe testing period in Association work, but a great deal had been accomplished, and this convention was called to decide the future policy of the Association. The membership shows 14,000 increase since 1919, approximate total now of 32,000 with Canada fourth in the world membership.

DOMINION

War was declared on February 22, Washington's birthday, at the Lasky studio in California, and extra copies of the "Wingfield Courier," announcing this fact sold like hot cakes. The outside of the newspaper office was thronged with excited men and women eager for news of the beginning of hostilities.

It was only part of "Our Leading Citizen," Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture which comes to the Dominion Theatre all this week. The newspaper office was a set; the editor's room was a set; the papers were props. George Ade, author of this original screen story, was responsible for the excitement although the actual activities were directed by Director Alfred Green. Mr. Meighan's leading woman in the picture is Lois Wilson, a popular Paramount player.

ROYAL VICTORIA

Who said the South Sea Islands were compounded of equal parts of tropical moonlight, white sands, handsome men and wiggling women? "Man to Man," which will be shown for the last time to-day at the Royal Victoria Theatre, is said to present the beach at Tiva-Tiva, an island of romance, as the location of a slimy dive that saw Steve Packard's downfall and the beginning of his regeneration.

Steve Packard is the derelict of the story and is impersonated by Harry Carey. That is a thing one instinctively likes about Universal's latest starring Carey: their heroes seldom have all the attributes of Lochinvar and Russian princes. They sometimes are just as human as the ordinary fellow next door, with the same percentage of faults and virtues.

Stuart Gregory wrote the novel from which the picture was made, and his story has it in certain fine points of characterization and dramatic punch which make the screen version worth watching for.

W. Ernst Reck Has Been Making Extensive American Tour

William Ernst Reck, vice-president of the Reck Heating Company, of Copenhagen, Denmark, arrived in the city yesterday and expected to leave for Vancouver to-day. Mr. Reck stated to The Times last evening at the Empress Hotel that he has been making a thorough investigation into machinery and general boiler construction methods in the United States on behalf of his firm. He left Denmark in November, at a time when a strike was in progress, and has made an extensive tour accompanied by his wife.

He found, he states, industrial conditions very different on this continent to those in Northern Europe and has learned many interesting facts during his tour. He will proceed to Banff and then cross the continent to Montreal and New York, en route home. He asked a number of questions with regard to conditions in his line of industry as they occur in British Columbia.

MUSICAL NOTES

During the past few weeks of London's music season in point of activity a new record has been attained. The British Kallion Company at Covent Garden, and the Carl Rosa Company at Hammer-smith, have been playing to crowded houses "Carmen," "Tosca," "Faust," "Romeo and Juliette," and "Die Meistersinger" were included in these company's repertoire. The conductors of the opera were all British musicians.

One of the most interesting events at the beginning of the present month was the jubilee concert of Trinity College of Music, London. This was held in the Queen's Hall and the historic building was filled to overflowing. The orchestra of this college gave several numbers by British composers. In the fashionable audience were many celebrated musicians.

Vladimir de Pachmann, the great Chopinist, gave a recital in London last evening. The Pachmann is now in the seventies.

Pablo Casals, the cellist, has also visited London with huge success. He now lives in the United States.

The 25th annual "May Week" concert by the Cambridge University Musical Society at Cambridge this year brought forth a special programme consisting of all British compositions.

The "Mikado" was recently given in Redlands, California, and at Waco, Tennessee, respectively, and the "Yeoman of the Guard" was performed at St. Louis. The "Mikado," "Pinafore" and "Pirates of Penzance" will be presented during the Summer months at Baltimore.

The San Carlo Opera Company will be heard on the Pacific Coast next winter. It is not known at present if this well-known organization will visit this city next season.

Portland, Ore., at an election has decided to sustain the teaching of music in its public schools by a vote of three to one in its favor.

Heifetz, the violinist, born in Vilna, Russia, twenty-three, has his home in New York. His favorite hobby is motor cars and he possesses two magnificent motors.

Albert Coates, the great English conductor is "devotee of Isidore Valentin." He owns hundreds of "flies."

"Rural Merrymaking" is the name of the new musical comedy by the pipe organ, written by the Hungarian organist and composer, Dezso d'Antaly, whilst a new ballet by Eugene Ysaie, named "The Dragonfly," is the name of the new ballet.

Mollie Pierce, a clever Calagary pianist, having gained a scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, London, goes to that institution for three years further study of music.

It is reported that 5,000 German composers may lose their American copyrights. Their copyright guarantees have expired, but an extension of time is asked by Dr. George Cartzke, a former member of Yale University faculty.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given an endowment of $200,000 to the American Academy in Rome.

At a recent meeting of concert managers held at St. Louis, it was brought out that "The West" was the best in music and is willing to pay for it. This is true enough but who is to "foot" the losses? It is not always a big artist that is successful from the box office point of view, and local managers must have worked hard to meet the public socially, artistically and commercially. Concert giving must be sponsored by the people, and only the greatest artists can be heard by and from the support of the community. The West will see a greater activity the coming season than ever, and will enjoy an unusual feast of music.

"Musical America" estimates that in the six millions in greater New York there are a million Russians and Poles, with a large percentage of Hebrews, nearly a million Italians, a million Austrians, Hungarians, Jugoslavs and Czechs-Slovaks, about six hundred thousand Germans, half a million of the Irish, and about seven-fifty thousand French. Truly an American city. The same paper estimates also that the typical New England town, Manchester, N. H., has a population of 10,000.

Peep is five feet ten inches in height, well built with fresh complexion and dark hair, and when last seen was clean shaven. He wears glasses and has a noticeable cast in his left eye, which is apparent when his glasses are removed. He wore a light checked suit with patch pockets and a soft gray cap.

So far as the police have been able to discover Peep did not board any boat or train here, and no one of his description is known to have moved up the land. His disappearance, in fact, is a complete mystery.

Peeps was employed here at one time by the Provincial Government as a surveyor and is known to a number of Victorians.

Peter B. Kyne, the novelist and short story writer, now at the Golden Studios, writing the subtitles for the all-star production of his story, "Brothers Under the Skin," which Director E. Mayor Hyman, of New York, is a believer in music for the masses. He has authorized the most extensive musical programme in the history of America's biggest city, which will include 250 free concerts to be given during the Summer months. The park concerts in New York alone cost $16,000 a year. Figure to yourself the pleasure and the happiness of all this, and what such a public-spirited citizen can do from an exalted and responsible position.

A survey, occupying fifteen years, of some 400,000 pieces of music at the Paris National Library, brings forth the following interesting facts: 70,000 selections, 14,000 waltzes, 2,000 polkas, 5,000 quadrilles, 1,300 galops, 4,000 mazurkas, 1,100 schottisches, and 3,300 waltzes for four hands. There are 250,000 vocal numbers, 7,000 pieces for the violin and some compositions for the carina, concertina and harmonica.

There was no one in Penny Green from whom he could expect helpful suggestions; but it was not helpful suggestions he wanted. He wanted merely to talk about it to a sympathetic listener. And not only about the book—about all sorts of things that interested him. And indirectly they all helped the book. To talk with one who responded sympathetically was in some way a source of enormous inspiration to him. Not always precisely, inspiration—comfort. All sorts of warming feelings stirred up within him when he could, in some sympathetic company, open out his mind.

He was not actively aware of it, but what, in those years, he came to crave for was sympathy of mind.

He found a great deal.

He always reminded Sabre of a grey old Scotch terrier tottering along behind and around the flanks of a company of striding mastiffs. He returned from these walks panting slightly and a little perspiring, and at the door gave the appearance of being dismissed and trotted away rather like a little grey old Scotch terrier tottering off to the stables.

The lady Ferguses called this daily walk "exercise" and it certainly was exercise for Mr. Fergus.

IF WINTER COMES

By A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

INSTALMENT NO. 13

She laughed again. "I was beginning to wonder if you were ever coming back to that."

He noticed nothing deprecatory in her remark. "Yes, rather. Well, this insurance act business, that's really a jolly good example of the way to do things. You see, it's not giving them the right to free treatment when they're in it's giving them the chance to earn the right. That's what you want to explain to High and Low. See—you want to say to yourself at the same time. You're stacking up a great chunk of the State and it belongs to you. England's yours and you want to pile it up all you know."

He was quite flushed. "That's the sort of thing I'm putting into that book of mine. England's yours, you know. Freedom beyond price; and therefore grand to be making more precious and more your own. I wish you'd like to see how the book's getting on; would you?"

"What book?"

"Why 'England.' I told you, you know. The history."

"Oh, that lesson book! I wish you'd write a novel."

He looked at her. "Oh, well!" he said.

After that he never mentioned "England" again to her. But he most desperately wanted to talk about it to some one. There was no one in Penny Green from whom he could expect helpful suggestions; but it was not helpful suggestions he wanted. He wanted merely to talk about it to a sympathetic listener. And not only about the book—about all sorts of things that interested him. And indirectly they all helped the book. To talk with one who responded sympathetically was in some way a source of enormous inspiration to him. Not always precisely, inspiration—comfort. All sorts of warming feelings stirred up within him when he could, in some sympathetic company, open out his mind.

He was not actively aware of it, but what, in those years, he came to crave for was sympathy of mind.

He found it in Penny Green, with what Mabel called "the most extraordinary people." "What you can find in that Mr. Fergus and that young Perch and his everlasting mother," she used to say, "I simply cannot imagine."

He found a great deal.

Mr. Fergus, who lived next door down the Green, and outside whose gate the bicycle had made its celebrated shortage record, was a grey man with grey hair, whiskers, and always in a grey suit. He had a large and very red wife and six thin and rather yellowish daughters.

Once a day, during the Summer and at two in Winter, the complete regiment of Ferguses moved out in an immense mass and proceeded in a dense crowd for walks and drives. The female Ferguses, having very long legs, walked very fast, and the solitary male Fergus, having very short legs, walked very slowly, and was usually, therefore, trotting to keep up with the pack. He had, moreover, not only to keep pace but also to keep place. He was forever getting squeezed out from between two tall Ferguses and trotting agitatedly around the heels of the battalion to recover a position in it. He always reminded Sabre of a grey old Scotch terrier tottering along behind and around the flanks of a company of striding mastiffs. He returned from these walks panting slightly and a little perspiring, and at the door gave the appearance of being dismissed and trotted away rather like a little grey old Scotch terrier tottering off to the stables.

The lady Ferguses called this daily walk "exercise" and it certainly was exercise for Mr. Fergus.

The eldest Miss Fergus was a grim thirty-nine and the youngest Miss Fergus a determined twenty-eight. They called their father "Papa" and used the name a good deal. When Sabre occasionally had tea at the Ferguses on a Sunday afternoon Mr. Fergus always appeared to be sitting at the end of an immense line of female Ferguses. Mrs. Fergus would put a cup and hand it to the Miss Fergus at her end of the line with the loud word "Papa!" and it would whir down the chain from daughter to daughter to the clamorous direction, each to each, "Papa!—Papa!—Papa!—Papa!" The cup would reach Mr. Fergus at the speed of a thunderbolt; and Mr. Fergus, waiting for it with agitated hands as a nervous felder awaits a rushing cricket ball, would stop it conclusively and usually drop and catch it at midspan, whereupon the entire chain of Ferguses would give together a very loud "Tock!" and immediately shoot at the parent a plate of buns with "Buns—Buns—Buns—Buns" all downy the line. Similarly when Mr. Fergus's grey little face would sometimes appear above the dividing wall to Sabre in the garden there would come a loud cry of "Papa, the plums!" and from several quarters of the garden this would be echoed "Papa, the plums!" "Papa, the plums!" and the grey little head, in the middle of a sentence, would disappear with great swiftness.

The Ferguses kept but one servant, a diminutive and startled child with one hand permanently up her back in search of an apron-shoulder string, and permanently occupied in frantically pursuing loud cracks, like pistol shots, of "Kate!—Kate!—Kate!" Each Miss Fergus "did" something in the house. One "did" the lamps, another "did" the silver, another "did" the fowls. And whatever it was they "did" they were always doing it. Each Miss Fergus, in addition, "did" her own room, and untidily they all "did" the garden. Every doing was done by the clock; and at any hour of the day any one Miss Fergus could tell a visitor precisely what, and at what point of what, every other Miss Fergus was doing.

In this well-ordered scheme of things what Mr. Fergus principally "did" was to keep out of the way of his wife and daughters, and this duty took him all his time and ingenuity. From the back windows of Sabre's house the grey little figure was frequently to be seen flitting up and down the garden paths in wary evasion of daughters "doing" the garden, and there was every reason to suppose that, within the house, the grey figure similarly flitted up and down the stairs and passages.

"Where is Papa?" was a constant cry from the mouth of the eldest daughter Fergus; and fatigue parties were constantly being detached from their duties to skirmish in pursuit of him.

WANTS STREET CARS ON BRIDGE

Mayor to Urge This Plan After Investigating Road Difficulties

Convinced that the plan offers the true solution of street difficulties in Victoria West, Mayor Marchant will interview heads of the B. C. Electric Railway Company immediately and urge upon them the advisability of running street cars across the new Johnson Street bridge, when it is completed, and then directly over to Esquimalt Road.

The Mayor yesterday went over to Victoria West (and looked over the street lines there. "I am persuaded that the real solution of the difficulties now apparent there would be for street cars to run across the new bridge and thence directly to Esquimalt Road," he said to-day. "The track would be eliminated from the point where the George car line turns off Esquimalt Road at Henry Street to the point where the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway tracks cross the road. The stretch to be eliminated is exceedingly narrow and its elimination would be a great improvement.

The Mayor will also talk over with officials of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway Company the proposal that the Fort Street Dardanelles be made a "one-way" street where only east-bound traffic would be allowed. This scheme, of course, involves the laying of car tracks along Pandora Avenue from Oak Bay Avenue to Cook Street for west-bound cars.

NIAGARA SAILS FOR AUSTRALIA

Passenger List Augmented by Bookings Diverted from Ventura

Canadian-Australasian liner Niagara got away from port about noon to-day on her homeward voyage, carrying 360 passengers and a full cargo. Capt. J. T. Rolls, contrary to expectations, allowed his command to be berthed astern of the freighter Mongolian Prince at Pier 3, and a good landing was made. A large number of the passengers sailing by the outbound Niagara were diverted from San Francisco, having been booked subject to cancellation by the liner Ventura, of the Oceanic Steamship Company.

The Oceanic Steamship Company issued an ultimatum to Washington, threatening to cancel sailings from San Francisco to Australia unless the American Government, by the sailing date of this Ventura set for July 18, indicated that it would increase the mail compensation from $2 to $4 per mile. As no word was received from Washington regarding an increase in the mail subsidy, the Ventura's sailing was cancelled and the passengers diverted to their destinations via British Columbia.

Termination of the Oceanic Steamship Company's Australian Line has been referred to as the worst single blow to the American Merchant Marine in years.

ICE STOPS AMUNDSEN AT GOOD HOPE BAY

Aeroplane Flight from Point Barrow Across Pole May Be Delayed

Seattle, July 22.—Held back from Point Barrow by vast fields of ice, Capt. Roald Amundsen is lying in Good Hope Bay, Kotzebue Sound, in his Polar Basin expedition ship, threatening to cancel sailings advised received from the North. His position is reported as latitude 66.06 and longitude 162.42. He arrived there several days ago. Kotzebue Sound is just inside the Arctic Circle and forms part of the Arctic Ocean, being northeast of Bering Strait.

When the ice clears out, the famous explorer will continue to Point Barrow to prepare for his daring attempt to fly across the top of the world via the North Pole. He sailed from Nome at the end of June and almost from the first encountered heavy ice. To date he has covered less than a third of the distance to Point Barrow, and Seattle friends doubt whether he can now begin the transarctic flight before the end of July.

Captain Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, conqueror of the Northwest Passage, and first man to circumnavigate the globe in Arctic water, will land the monoplane and a Curtis biplane at Point Barrow, and from there will proceed five miles south to Nunavut, whence he is to hope on his transarctic flight. Before the top of the world flight, an attempt will be made by the monoplane and the biplane to establish a cache of gasoline and other supplies at a point about 400 miles north of Point Barrow. If this cannot be done, the famous explorer will make a nonstop flight unless he can descend at the North Pole.

Without the cache, the monoplane will be able to carry only enough gasoline for a twenty-six-hour flight. Captain Amundsen plans to head for Spitzbergen if the weather is clear. If it becomes thick, he will divert his course at the North Pole and head for Cape Columbia, Grant Land.

SEA LIONS WERE MOWED DOWN BY MACHINE GUNFIRE

Terrible Havoc Wreaked by Givency's Gunners on Pearl Group Herd

New Westminster, July 22.—One hundred sea lions ranging in size from pups weighing a hundred pounds to massive mammals tipping the scales at a ton and a half, growling, grunting, snapping or roaring as they flopped, rolled or slid down the rocks of the Pearl group, while a Lewis machine gun kept up a steady staccato and poured a cruelly effective fire into the mass as it sought the shelter of the surge of the North Pacific, made a sight that was rare and wonderful in this wild district in which it occurred, and would certainly have gladdened the hearts of the fishermen and the canners if they could have witnessed it. It is estimated that one of these animals consumes at least 500 worth of sockeye salmon during a season and during an estimated lifetime of ten years more than 10,000 worth of salmon are consumed by each of these voracious lions.

For fourteen days the government fisheries cruiser Givency, under Capt. Laird, cruised off Hope Island, which is the northernmost point of land of the Vancouver Island group, and where the wilderness of the world, those of land and water, meet, in quest of sea lions, but the weather was not favorable for about a week a steady southwest wind making it impossible to operate in Queen Charlotte Sound. Finally they were able to break in the weather and the cruiser went out to the danger zone surrounding the Pearl Rocks and then launched the cutter and lifeboat, which were manned by three riflemen, First Officer Henderson and Machine Gunner Bill Malden, of this city. There were about 400 sea lions lying on the launch swept down upon it, with the machine gun mounted on a ship lamp bracket, which gave it a good radius of action and made its fire mercilessly effective as the lions grouped in a swale on their way to the sea.

Rocks Swept Bare.
As soon as the first rock was swept bare of old ones, three riflemen were landed and did deadly execution among the pups that were left on the rocks, while the lifeboat and launch went on to the other rocks, where great grey, brown or cinnamon colored lions looked wondrously at the strange invaders. There were even more lions on the third rock than on the first, and when the smoke of action had cleared away a goodly number were slain. More than 75 lions were slain the first day, and the following day the performance was again repeated by the marksmen of this time Wireless Operator Atkins accompanying the expedition as photographer, but the sport was too strenuous and he forgot all about the lions in watching the slaughter on the first island, where conditions were ideal and where the machine gun came into its own with a vengeance, wreaking terrible havoc among the herd of lions. Some 150 lions were slain on the second day, as weather conditions were better than on the previous day. On the third day of the actual hunt, Major Motherwell and Dr. Frazer, the eminent biologist, went out with the party, but the hunting was poor as most of the intermediate lions had been killed off and there were only about six of them and a dozen of the big fellows left, while the sea lion hunt for the year ended.

Considerable valuable information was obtained for future operations and some good work was done this year in the extermination line, so that the cruise of the Givency may be classed as a success, in spite of adverse weather conditions.

TOLMIE CHARTERED FOR RETURN VOYAGE

Locally-Built Wind Jammer to Carry Coal from Newcastle to San Francisco

The wooden barquentine Simon F. Tolmie, Capt. J. C. Stevia, which sailed from this port July 11 laden with a cargo of 1,500,000 feet of lumber for Australia, has been chartered for the return voyage to load coal at Newcastle, N.S.W., for San Francisco. She has been chartered for October loading, the terms being private. The charterers are James Rolph & Co., of San Francisco.

The Simon F. Tolmie was built at the Chollberg shipyards in Victoria, being the first vessel laid down for the Victoria shipbuilders, Ltd., which concern is now in bankruptcy. The S. F. Tolmie is now being operated by the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Ltd., and has already made one round voyage to the Orient, making a very creditable showing on her initial cruise. She returned from Kobe in ballast.

$45,000 INSURANCE ON SHIP HENRIETTE

Freight Covered by Approximately $25,000 and Hull at About $20,000

Freight insurance of approximately $25,000 and hull insurance of about $20,000, all placed in the San Francisco market, was carried on the iron schooner Henriette, reported wrecked near Suva, Fiji, says the San Francisco Shipping Register. Underwriters at San Francisco state that it is safe to assume that the vessel will be a total loss. The Henriette left Newcastle, N. S. W., June 1, for Levuava, Fiji, where she loaded one-fourth of a cargo of copra. She then proceeded to Rotumah to load the balance of her cargo, and while off Suva, ran aground. The Henriette had a "reputation" among marine underwriters for fifteen years ago she was a total loss in the Columbia River. The Henriette was later raised, converted into a coal barge, and brought to British Columbia waters, figuring in several wrecks while on this coast. She was later refitted and refitted as a schooner. Built in 1874 at La Seyne, France, the vessel was of 677 tons net, with a length of 150 feet beam of 30 feet and a depth of 18 feet.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL CHARTERED TO LOAD ON CANADIAN SIDE

San Francisco, July 22.—The steamship Bjornstjerne Bjornson has been chartered for lumber from British Columbia to Halifax, July loading, at $15, with option of New York at $12.50, by the Alberta Lumber Company. The Unca and the Bratsberg have been chartered from the Columbia River to Montreal for lumber, July loading. It is reported, at $15. The charter was not announced. A vessel has been chartered by G. W. Gates for lumber, July loading, from Puget Sound to South Africa, at $20.

BAR DREDGE FOR GRAYS HARBOR

Hoquiam, July 22.—Bids for the construction of a seagoing bar dredge for use on Grays Harbor under the management of the Port of Grays Harbor have been called for by the Army board of engineers for rivers and harbors, according to word received from Congressman Albert Johnson at Washington, D.C. Bids on the project will be opened August 2 at Washington.

The dredge will be as large as the Coos Bay dredge Michie, which has operated several times on Grays Harbor in recent years. It will take about eighteen months to build. In place of the steam engines, as in the Michie, the Grays Harbor dredge will be equipped with Diesel engines of the largest type.

SAY GOVERNMENT SHOULD PAY COST OF SOLDIER AND MAYOR URGES JOINT MUNICIPAL RELIEF ACTION

City Has Other Proposals for Unemployment Conference

That the cost of all relief extended to unemployed returning soldiers should be borne not by municipalities but by the Federal Government will be the contention of Victoria's delegates to the national unemployment conference in Calgary next month.

Details of the recommendations to be laid before the conference by Victoria delegates were discussed at a conference at the City Hall to-day when Mayor Marchant outlined his views on the subject to City Council members. The proposal that returned soldier relief be borne exclusively by the Federal Government was advanced by the Mayor and apparently met with general approval.

Another proposal advanced by the Mayor and informally approved was that persons moving into any city be forced to live there a considerable period before they could claim to be residents and therefore entitled to relief. "The present plan under which a man is domiciled in a place after thirty days' residence here to a absurd," the Mayor declared. "The period should be a year, to my mind. If people knew that they had to live in a place for a year before being entitled to municipal relief they would hesitate before wandering about the country."

"Unemployment in any community is a broad question," the Mayor pointed out. "For this reason, in my opinion, adjoining municipalities should deal with the problem jointly. For instance, here in Victoria, the city, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt should handle the question together and bear the burden together."

The Mayor also suggested to the unemployment conference delegates that cities should not be forced to bear the total cost of keeping destitute old people and the dependents of unemployed.

ASIATICS OF ISLAND ARE NOW BUYING USED CARS

Used cars are now finding favor with Asiatics of Victoria and other parts of the island, and similar reports come from the mainland. While trucks form the majority of these purchases, a number of second hand passenger cars of various makes are being sold to these people. Speaking of this, Gus Masters and Archie Muir, of the Masters Motor Co., Ltd., say:

"Chinese and Japanese are shrewd buyers and they take their time before making a purchase. They prefer used cars for the sake of economy and also because they are not so particular about appearances. So long as the car is durable and will last, they are satisfied. They have an amazingly keen idea of motor values and can usually tell what a car is worth. Many of these purchasers are truck farmers up island although some are residents of the city and buy cars for their own pleasure and convenience. Often when a Japanese or Chinese thinks of buying a machine, he brings a lot of friends, and in their number there is one or two that are well acquainted with a car. They know the value of a car and seldom try to beat down the price, once they see the value it has."

Will Petition Saanich Council in Matter

Residents of Moodyville on Brentwood Bay oppose the Brentwood Hotel intend to circulate a petition to be presented to the Saanich Council asking for a water supply for the section mentioned, which is now one of the most thickly populated summer resorts in the Saanich Peninsula. Moodyville has been subdivided into numerous small lots on which cabins have been built and it is claimed that in the best interests of sanitation there should be a steady supply of fresh running water taken from some satisfactory source, to supply the large number of people who crowd into this section every summer. At present water is obtained from wells and springs but it is claimed that this is not in the best interests of health considering other conditions having a bearing on the matter.

Cobb Continues To Gain On G. Sisler

Georgian Peach Is Now Only Eleven Points Behind St. Louis Slugger In Race For Batting Honors In American League; "Tillie" Walker, of Athletics, Having Hard Job Catching Hornsby For Home Run Honors, Being Two In Rear At Present.

Chicago, July 22.—Perhaps Tyrus Raymond Cobb is convinced in his own mind that he is "slowing up" after 17 years as the star in the American League, but George Sisler, the marvel player of the St. Louis Browns, whose batting honors Cobb is threatening today, is positive the "Georgia Peach" will be his most dangerous rival for the 1922 batting championship. The race between Cobb and Sisler today is narrowed down to a difference of only 11 points with Sisler setting the pace with an average of .416, a drop of four points within a week. Cobb, continuing his batting rampage, smashed out nine hits in his last five games, bringing his average to .405 while the best Sisler could do was four in as many games.

Sisler, however, is showing his worth in base-stealing and scoring, having registered 73 times and stolen 34 bases—the best base-stealing performance in the major leagues.

Walker Has a Job.

Clarence "Tillie" Walker, the slugging outfielder with Philadelphia, is having a hard time catching Roger Hornsby, the National League home run hitter. Just when Walker pines out a homer, Hornsby bags one for himself. Walker smashed out two in one game and ran his string up to 23, which gave him a lead over Ken Williams of St. Louis by two. Harry Heilmann, of Detroit, has 16 and Babe Ruth has 15.

Other leading batters for 35 or more games are: Speaker, Cleveland, .385; Schang, New York, .360; Heilmann, Detroit, .354; Meusel, New York, .343; Bassler, Detroit, .347; Miller, Philadelphia, .347; Tobin, St. Louis, .342; O'Neill, Cleveland, .339.

"Hack" Miller Doing Well.

A recruit and a veteran are giving National Leaguers something to talk about. The recruit is Lawrence "Hack" Miller, the Pacific Coast slugger with Chicago, and the veteran is Jake Daubert, Cincinnati first-baseman. They have been wielding the hickory with telling effects, each making a dozen hits in their last seven games. Daubert's hitting included two home runs and a home run, while Miller bagged four homers and two doubles. The Cincinnati veteran brought his average from .355 to .371 and is the runner-up to Roger Hornsby, the St. Louis star, who tops the list with .387. Miller added ten points to his average and moved on among the select 19, his percentage being .354.

Hornsby's keen eye and hitting prowess keeps him out in front among the major league home run hitters, with a string of 25 for the season.

Max Carey, Pittsburgh, in addition to showing the way to the base-stealers with 24 thievery, is out in front as a run-getter having registered 76 times.

Other leading batters for 35 or more games are: Gowdy, Boston, .370; Hollocher, Chicago, .366; Grimes, Chicago, .363; Snyder, New York, .362; Rigbee, Pittsburgh, .362; J. Johnston, Brooklyn, .357; Griffiths, Brooklyn, .351; Miller, Chicago, .350.

Two Views of the Beautiful New Golf Links at Uplands Which Were Recently Opened

THE THIRTEENTH TEE

THE FIFTEENTH GREEN

The Uplands Golf Club is now making plans for the formal opening of the links. The course was thrown open for play on July 14, but owing to the fact that the clubhouse was not completed it was decided to hold the formal opening at a later date. The course is badly in need of rain. The greens are in fine shape, but the fairways are a bit dusty. The Uplands Club gives Victoria three 18-hole courses, something of which no other city of like size in the world can boast of.

CHANNEL SWIMMERS ARE AGAIN ACTIVE

London, July 22.—George Michel, the French swimmer, who attempted yesterday to swim the English Channel, relinquished his efforts when six miles from South Foreland on the English coast, after being 16 hours in the water. Michel started from Cape Grizet, France, at 8.40 Thursday evening.

GIANTS RETAIN LEAD BY A STRANGE FREAK

St. Louis Won While New York Lost, But McGraw's Men Still in Front

New York, July 22.—By virtue of a statistical freak the Giants still hold the lead in the National League race, four points ahead of St. Louis. The Reds found Fred Bremer for a bouquet of hits to defeat the Giants five to three, while St. Louis, in one-inning batting, won from the Braves six to one.

The Pirates shut out Philadelphia six to nothing with Morrison hurling in rare form.

Brooklyn lost one to nothing to the Cubs in the fastest played game of the season, seventy-three minutes.

The Yankees defeated Detroit seven to five and kept pace with the Browns who pounded three Athletics hurlers for sixteen hits and a ten to two victory.

Indians in Fourth Place

Speaker's Indians won their twelfth straight game and moved the Detroit club from fourth place.

The Red Sox won from the White Sox eight to seven and Boston gave up the cellar position to the Mack-men.

High Diving Tower Nearly Completed

The new high diving tower which is being erected at the V. I. A. A. Curtis Point, for the P. N. A. A. gala on August 4 and 5 by C. A. McGregor, the local contractor, is now nearing completion, and it is expected that by the early part of next week the local divers will be able to familiarize themselves with the tower so that they will be able to perform their spectacular dives next month.

Mr. McGregor, who erected three of the previous towers which met with disaster, is taking extraordinary precautions to have the tower stand permanently and has built it on the same principle as the Eiffel Tower in Paris. Everybody who has seen the tower wants to know who will be the daring divers who will perform from the dizzy height. Billy Muir and Buck Calder, the V. I. A. A. stars, who made a big name for themselves at the last P. N. A. A. meet by their wonderful performance from the national open tournament at Skokie, Ill., and will not take part either in the profession or open Canadian tournament.

Greatest Lacrosse Game Of Season On To-night

What will no doubt be the hardest game yet played in the series between Victoria and Vancouver for possession of the Mann Cup, emblematic of the world's amateur lacrosse championship, will be staged at the Stadium this evening at 7 o'clock.

Both teams are as fit as Kubelik's fiddle and are ready for a real ding-dong battle.

Vancouver wants to win to-night and thereby make sure of putting its books on the cup. So far this season the usual practice of the Vancouver team has been to arrive on the afternoon boat. This, however, only gives them a couple of hours before going on the field. In order to have the team in the best of shape and give them a good rest after the journey, Jack Cairns brought his lads over this morning.

Want It Like Gandy

"We want this game," remarked Jack today. "If we pick it off, I think we can feel pretty sure of lifting the cup, which has been here since 1919."

Vancouver needs to have a lot of confidence to-night because the Victoria crew will be flying high and be in for a real old-fashioned game. The local home is traveling like a flash of lightning, and Corey Hesse, the visiting goalie, will have to have his scoop working fast to save the net from bulging.

"We know we're up against a hard proposition," stated Fred McGraw, captain of the champions, this morning, "but we're sailing along very nicely now. We'll have the best team on the field to-night that we can muster and it should be a clean, fast, hot game. Vancouver is confident and so are we. We realize that a loss to-night will practically put us out of the running. We want to stay in and hold the cup, so look for a good crowd of fans to give us a helping hand from the stands to-night."

Only two games remain to be played after to-night. One is slated for Vancouver, while the other will be played in this city. It may be necessary for a play-off, as the teams may finish up tied for the leadership.

It is not known who will handle the game. Vancouver asked to have Lester Patrick handle the whistle, but the hockey mogul would sooner sit on the sidelines and watch the fun.

DAVE BLACK WILL NOT DEFEND TITLE IN EAST

Vancouver, July 22.—Dispatches from Montreal to the effect that Dave Black, professional of the Shaughnessy Heights Golf Club and four times winner of the professional championship of Canada, will appear at this year's meeting at St. Lambert to defend his title, are incorrect. Dave has just returned from a trip to the national open tournament at Skokie, Ill., and will not take part either in the profession or open Canadian tournament.

STAR GOLFERS TO PLAY FOR TITLE

Canadian Open Golf Championship at Stake at Montreal Last of Next Week

Gene Sarazen, New U. S. Champion, Will Be Among Those in Competition

Montreal, July 22.—The Canadian open golf championship will be competed for this year on July 23 and 24 over the links of the Mount Bruno Golf Club near Montreal. It is expected to attract all the professionals in Canada as well as a number from the United States, and also the best amateur players all over the Dominion. The entry of Gene Sarazen, the open champion of the United States, has already been received, while as the contest does not conflict with any important tournament in the United States, it is expected that among visitors from across the border may be Kirkwood, the remarkable Australian, as well as Hutchison, ex-British open champion; Hagan, who recently won the British open championship, and Barnes, open champion in the United States last year.

Canada's first line of defence will be O. R. Murray, of Montreal, winner of the Quebec Provincial Championship; George C. Cummings, winner of the Toronto and district open championship, and Davis Black, of Vancouver. The championship is open to all amateurs and professionals. It will consist of 72 holes match play, 18 of which will be played in the morning of the first day and another 18 in the afternoon. The second day's programme is identical. The tournament which will take place under the rules of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, will commence on the morning of July 23.

The Rivermead Cup a trophy to be competed for annually under the rules of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, will be presented to the winner and will be held for one year by his club, or until the next annual competition takes place.

A Long Course

The course at Mount Bruno comprises a distance of 3,344 yards, making a total of 6,543, an exceptionally lengthy course. The holes are all good, but the twelfth is worthy of special mention, being 155 yards from tee to pin, and the thirteenth, which is 440 yards long. Up to the twelfth hole, the player has been looking over a picturesque panorama of valleys and distant hills, but when he faces the flag he is looking towards cool woods apart from the vista, however, he is facing a difficult task. The average player requires three full shots to hole high, while five is very often exceeded. Besides the great length of the hole, the course runs uphill which greatly adds to its difficulty. The thirteenth is another picturesque hole, the bush having been cut away to provide a fairway, and when he has left the tee, the player emerges into what appears to be new world.

JUNIOR BASEBALL

Last evening at the Victoria High School the Y. M. C. A. and the Tyees battled for supremacy in a Junior League baseball game, the latter winning by 14-13. Up to the third inning the Tyees led one to nothing. In the last of the fourth the Tyees scored two runs, and after that they never headed except in the ninth, when the Y. M. C. A. with the score 12-3 against them, started a rally, and it took three pitchers to stop them. When the Tyees came to the plate in their half of the ninth the score was 13-12 against them. Both first man to bat, singled, went to second on Anderson's sacrifice, and came in when the opposing second baseman juggled Belford's roller.

Belford took second on a passed ball, and when Sellers hit to the short stop the first baseman was off his base for the throw, and Belford scored on the play.

McConnell, of the Y, pitched good ball, but got poor support. Balcom, for the Tyees, was wild, but was effective in the pinches.

The other results in the Junior League were as follows: Royals, 18; Tigers, 18, (called on account of darkness); Um-Tomies, 10; Mets, 8.

Pirates won from Hustlers by default.

NEW CANOE TROPHY.

Montreal, July 22.—The Canadian Canoe Association has received a permanent silver trophy from the half-mile war canoe championship of Canada, which will be known as the Henry Birks trophy and will hold relatively the same place as the Fulford trophy in the matter of the one-mile Canadian championship.

CARPENTIER AGREES TO MEET SIKI FOR LIGHT HEAVY TITLE

Paris, July 22.—An announcement was made to-day that Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion boxer, will meet "Battling" Siki, the Senegalese, heavyweight, near Paris early in September. There will be a purse of three hundred thousand francs, 200,000 of which will go to the winner. The light heavyweight championship of the world, which Carpentier won last year from Battling Levinsky also will be involved.

ROUGH TACTICS IN LACROSSE TABOOED

Officials of Pro League on Mainland at Last Take Action to Stop Rowdism

Vancouver, July 22.—The strange hold check in lacrosse is to go. So, too, will the play in the crease in which home players tread all over the feet of the goalkeepers; and any other questionable tactics also are to be eliminated.

Officials of Terminal and Western clubs, along with President Neils Nelson of the B.C.L.A., got together yesterday and decided that clean lacrosse must be on tap in future matches. Referee Johnny Howard will be instructed to penalize players who adopt the strange hold check in which a defence man tries to grab the stick of an opponent, and to banish players who enter the goal-keeper's crease and endeavor to knock his club out of his hands while he is shooting.

"We're going to keep the game clean and speed it up," President Jack Pattison of the Terminals said yesterday. "We like strenuous games but the rough stuff is undesirable."

MONTREAL EXCITED OVER SOCCER GAME

Grenadier Guards and Ulster Guards Meet in Semi-final for Connaught Cup

Montreal, July 22.—One of the greatest crowds that ever attended a soccer game in this country will turn out this afternoon when the Grenadier Guards of this city, and Ulster United, of Toronto, face each other at Alexandra Park for the first game of the semi-finals for the Connaught Cup.

The greatest optimism prevails in the Guards camp, despite the fact that the Ulster team is considered as the most formidable aggregation that has ever represented Ontario.

The probable lineup of the Guards follows: Brown, E. Clark, Poy, Montgomery, Beattie, Topping, Ferguson or Dixon, Hill, D. Clark and Smith.

H. H. Lyons, of Quebec, will referee.

At the Stadium To-night, 7 o'clock.

WINNIPEG OARSMEN ARE GRANTED LEAD

Duluth Scratched Two Crews and As Result Canadian Club Leads for Lipton Cup

Kenora, Ont., July 22.—Winnipeg leads Duluth by 14 points in the struggle for the Sir Thomas Spence trophy, as the result of yesterday's racing at the international regatta. Winnipeg's lead was due to the scratching of two races by Duluth—the senior fours and doubles.

Duluth took the junior eights and bantam fours, and Kenora won the junior sculls event when H. Hackett defeated Barry Bain, of Winnipeg, by a length in the most exciting battle of the afternoon.

The junior eight promised to be the principal event of the day and the race was a see-saw affair until 200 yards from the finish when Winnipeg, in picking up a lost oar, came in three lengths behind.

In the bantam fours, Duluth romped in nearly four lengths ahead of Winnipeg. The day finished with Winnipeg holding 63.75 points, Duluth 50 and Kenora 14.

LOCAL PLAYERS IN MAINLAND TOURNEY

Mainland Tennis Championship Opens Monday; Many Americans Will Play

Vancouver, July 22.—Play in the mainland tennis championships will be started on Monday on the courts of the Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club. The entry list, which was closed last night, is probably the largest on record in this city, the total running over three hundred. In the men's singles alone there are over ninety while forty-eight ladies are down for the singles.

Added interest will centre around the appearance here of Miss Mayme McDonald, of Seattle, who will come north for the first time in several years. Last week she defeated Mrs. Cushing, of Berkeley, California, in the finals of the Oregon State championships at Portland, and this week she is taking part in the Washington championships at Seattle. In addition Mrs. Simons Bourke and Mrs. Bragdon, both of Seattle, and will know here, will be up on Sunday.

Many Americans to Play.

Leon de Turenne, captain of the Seattle Tennis Club, is heading a delegation which will include Arm and Marian, Shave Merd, Villegas, the Chilean consul in Seattle, who was here last year, and Bruce Hesketh, all of whom rank high in Washington tennis. Sahr and Howard Kinsley, of California, will represent the far south.

Turenne and Marian last week won the Inland Empire doubles championship, while they also took first honors in the Seattle city tourney. Merrill is the Inland Empire junior champion.

The delegation from Victoria will comprise Miss Marjorie Leeming, who last year was defeated by Mrs. Diamond in the finals, Mrs. Rickaby, who figured in the finals of the mixed, Mr. and Mrs. Unsworth, Miss Seon, Mr. and Mrs. Mogg, Rev. S. Ryall, who holds the veterans' championship, will be over from Nanaimo, accompanied by his son, and several other entrants from outside points.

Mainland players this year will have an unusually long time in keeping the trophies at home, but with players like Cardinal, W. J. Peers, Green, Muir, Sholte, Boucher and Milne on hand, it is assumed that the Southern side will be given hard games before taking any titles.

V.I.A.A. DECATHLON

The gymnastic competition which forms part of the V. I. A. A. ladies' decathlon was very closely contested last evening by the fair contestants. The events included rope climbing, tumbling, ground athletics and tests on rings, parallel and horizontal bars.

Audrey Griffin and Leo Dahlsted tied for first place with 60 points each, and Florrie Gates and Mrs. Davies were next with 54 points each.

In the tennis match between Audrey Griffin and Mrs. Davies to decide third place in this event the game was won by Mrs. Davies 6 to 2. A large number of interested spectators were on hand to witness the events.

WONDERFUL WORK OF FAMOUS SOCIETY

Over 9,000 Bibles Distributed in B.C. in 1921

One Hundred and Ten Languages in Canada Used

"The distribution of the Scripture without note or comment." This, in brief, is the object of the work of the British and Foreign Bible Society. It is a work that is undenominational in character, a work that extends to every class of man regardless of color and creed, and one that reaches every part of the globe where Christian missionaries are, in many cases preceding them in their work.

Few people realize the work that is done in Canada and British Columbia by this organization. In the province since the inception of the branch in 1919, under the direction of Rev. Dr. J. Knox Wright, himself a pioneer, who, during his ministry reached thousands all over the province, there have been distributed 12,457 Bibles, testaments and portions of the Bible. The Bible has been distributed here in some 45 languages.

Nearly 10,000 in B.C.

In the province last year there was distributed 9,074 Bibles. Of this number 3,011 were in foreign languages. Study of the statistics supplied by the society reveal the fact that out of the latter 1,877 were given to the Chinese. Next to the Chinese come the Japanese, who obtained 474 copies of the Bible or parts of it. Requests have come in to the society for Bibles written in many languages, and in nearly every case these have been filled. Ancient and modern languages can all be obtained in the little shop on Howe Street. During the year 19 Bibles written in ancient Greek, and five in Latin, were given out. One Welsh Bible was asked for and received, as well as one Bohemian, one Croatian, one Lithuanian, one Roumanian, and two Urdu.

In Canada, where there are 110 languages spoken, and according to the society officials, Bibles may be obtained in all its offices. It has been translated into 27 Indian dialects, and is being used extensively by missionaries. In this province at Nelson and Brilliant, special attention is being paid to the work among the Doukhobors. This work is being looked after by Judge Forin and Rev. H. H. Wright.

Every immigrant that comes to Vancouver is reached by Mr. Alexander Weir of the society, who keeps in touch with the immigration authorities, and as soon as possible after his arrival he is provided with a Bible written in his native tongue. The educational value of this work is beyond measure.

Third of Billion. The history of this society is a record of the triumphs of the written Word. It has established agencies in all parts of the world and its collectors have gone into regions far and wide to disseminate the message of the cross. It has grown from a small beginning to one of the largest organizations in existence, covering with its operations practically every country in the world. It publishes the Bible in 53 languages, 150 of which were added since the present century began. Its issues for the year 1920-21 numbered 8,654,781 books, and since its foundation in 1804 it has issued 219,476,099 copies of the scriptures.

At the present time the amount of work which has been done is stupendous. Over 500 different languages have been successfully dealt with, and the Bible, or parts of the Bible, have been distributed in something over 450 different countries. There is no sign whatsoever that the authorities who preside over this institution are relaxing their efforts. Indeed, every year witnesses some new crusade carried out very often under the greatest difficulties, but, as a rule, brought to a successful issue.

THREE MINISTERS TO ARRIVE SUNDAY

Mines, Nova Scotia. There is one son, Charles Russell McKenzie, born in May, 1895.

Mr. McKenzie is a barrister by profession. His course of study led to his graduation in 1919, and he took up the practice of law in North Sydney. From law into public life was but a step, and it was not long before he was serving as Commissioner of Schools of Cape Breton County. His activities broadened when he became Mayor of North Sydney, a position he held for five consecutive years.

During his career in North Sydney Mr. McKenzie had taken an ever-increasing part in the activities of the Liberal Party. In 1906 he was elected as a member of the Nova Scotia Legislature, representing his constituents in the general election of 1907. He was first elected to the House of Commons in 1904. There was an interval of two years in his career when he ceased to practice law, but he returned to the County Court of District No. 7, Nova Scotia. Again entering politics he was elected to the House of Commons at the general election of 1908. Appealing to his constituents in the election campaign of 1911, he was again returned as a member, and again in 1917. He was chosen House leader in 1919, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier died, continuing to hold that position during the session. He was appointed Solicitor General in December last year.

Hon. Mr. R. Motherwell is the son of John and Elizabeth Motherwell, and was born at Perth, Lanark County, Ontario, on January 6, 1860. He was educated at Perth, Scotland, and Glasgow, Agricultural College. He was married on December 17, 1884 to Adeline Rogers, formerly of New Bayne, Ontario, and settled in Miss Kate Gillespie, of Five Hills, Saskatchewan.

Mr. Motherwell is one of the pioneer farmers of the prairies, and operated an extensive farm at Abernethy. He was organizer and former president of the Central Canada Seed Growers' Association and vice-president of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. He founded the first grain growers' association in Saskatchewan. His political career dates from 1904 when he sought election to the territorial legislature, then unsuccessfully. He was returned at the first election for the Saskatchewan House on his own ticket in 1905, and was appointed by Hon. Walter Scott as Commissioner of Agriculture and Provincial Secretary upon the formation of the Government. He was Minister of Agriculture in the Martin administration up to his resignation on December 13, 1918. During that time he has had ups and downs of political experience at the polls, and when he left the provincial area he was occupying a seat for the third riding with which he had been associated.

Mr. Motherwell defeated Mr. J. H. McLeod in the 1918 election. He attended the Coronation of their Majesties and made an English tour. In the general election last December he was defeated by Mr. J. H. McLeod. He was returned in the Liberal returned on the prairies, and was sworn in in December with the King Cabinet in the portfolio of Agriculture.

Hon. Charles Stewart

Hon. Charles Stewart, who sits for a Quebec seat, has throughout his political career been associated with the Liberal Party. He was born August 26, 1868, at Stratford, Ontario, and educated there. In 1891 he married Jane R. Sneath, and had the distinction of entering public life at an acclamation election in 1909, continuing in the Alberta election until the turn of last year, when the Farmer party defeated the Liberals. He entered the Alberta Ministry in 1912 as Minister of Municipal Affairs, and at the end of that year became Minister of Public Works, and in October, 1917, he succeeded the late Hon. A. L. Sifton as Premier, when Mr. Sifton joined the Union Government. He was Minister of Interior and Immigration in the King administration.

COWICHAN TENNIS

Duncan, July 22. — Many fine matches were played yesterday at the open tournament now in progress at the courts of the South Cowichan Tennis Club. One of the best matches of the day was in the men's singles, when N. T. Corfield (South Cowichan) defeated D. M. Gordon (Victoria), in a three-set match, Corfield losing the first set 4-5 and taking the next two 7-5, 6-3. Throughout it was an excellent exhibition of tennis.

The defeat of Mrs. Hickes and N. T. Corfield, who held the mixed doubles challenge cup from last year by Mrs. G. O. Share (Victoria), D. T. D. Stevens (Vancouver), came as somewhat of a surprise. Mrs. Share and Mr. Stevens had never played together before, but they made a fine combination. Mrs. Share's tennis was really the outstanding feature of the match.

The results follow:

Ladies' Singles.
Mrs. W. E. Christmas (Duncan) defeated Miss McNeill (Victoria), 7-5, 6-1.

Men's Singles.
W. E. Corfield (Duncan) defeated H. W. Green (Vancouver), 4-4, 6-3.

Men's Doubles.
J. Edwards and T. H. Leeming (Victoria) defeated C. C. Ward and G. G. Share (South Cowichan), 6-4, 6-2.

Mixed Doubles.
Miss Hayward and F. L. Kingston (South Cowichan) defeated H. W. Green (Vancouver) and Mrs. Gillett (South Cowichan), 4-4, 6-4.

Ladies' Doubles.
Miss Pezz and Mrs. Mogg (Victoria) defeated Misses J. and R. Wilson (South Cowichan), 6-2, 4-6, 6-1.

KINGSTON ST. TENNIS

The finals in the annual handicap tournament of the Kingston Street Lawn Tennis Club, which has been in progress for the past fortnight, are being played to-day and the prize in the different events will be presented on Saturday next. Yesterday's matches resulted as follows:

The results of yesterday's semi-finals in the men's doubles were as follows:

Fetherston and Campbell (scr.) beat Meston and Sommer (plus 15) 6-2, 6-3.

List and C. S. Wilson (scr.) beat Col. Appleton and Partridge (plus 15) 6-2, 6-3.

MARRIAGE SERVICE BY WOMAN HELD

Congregational Minister Performs Ceremony; Some Changes in Wording

What is said to be the first wedding ceremony to be performed by a woman in this country has taken place at Greville Place Congregational Chapel, Greville Place, Malda Vale, W. London, England.

The officiating minister was the Rev. Constance Mary Colman, and the bride and bridegroom were Miss Ethel Minnie Parker and Arthur H. Draper, of St. John's Wood, N.W. A special order of service was employed, and various changes were made to give expression to modern ideals of Christian marriage. For example, the word "obey" was omitted by the bride, and the bride and bridegroom gave each other a ring, each repeating the words:

"As this ring now encircles thy finger, let my love surround thee all the days of thy life."

The Rev. Constance Mary Colman is a joint pastor with her husband, the Rev. Claud Colman, of Greville Place Congregational Church, Mr. and Mrs. Colman were fellow students at the University of Cambridge, Oxford. They were married the day after the girl minister was ordained, and became assistant ministers together in the Greville Place church, where they carried on together the Darby Street Mission for the King's Welsh House Church. Mrs. Colman was in great demand for the christening of babies.

Mrs. Colman had taken her Bachelor of Divinity degree at London University before she entered the ministry, and had also gained an M.A. degree.

"All-Woman Service." Before marrying the couple wrote to the Congregational Union, said Mrs. Colman to a Daily Mail reporter. "The reply was that as there were women registrars, I was entitled to perform the ceremony. It was an 'all-woman service'—a woman minister, a woman organist, and a choir of women."

"Surely the Sex Disqualification Act gives me the right to marry people, as I am an ordained minister. In any case, the civil registrar was present."

An eminent authority on these matters told a Daily Mail reporter that he believed the marriage to be in order.

LORD HARRIS PLEADS FOR SUNDAY GAMES

The responsibility of the church in regard to recreation and sport was the chief subject of discussion at the Anglican Diocesan Conference, said an English exchange.

Lord Harris, the veteran cricketer, in a plea for Sunday pastimes, said that public libraries and museums were now kept open on Sundays, but they were neither rest nor recreation for a man who had been sitting on a high stool in an office for five and a half days in the week, or for tired politicians who had been working ten or twelve hours for six days in the week. The only recreation of any use in such cases was that people should get some fresh air. He appealed for the dwellers in the crowded cities, who had no other recreation, to be given the right to play in their own houses than in the air and sunshine, playing many games under proper control he was not afraid of great exhibition games by professionals or that gate-money would be taken, but that the physical and mental and moral advantage of the great mass of the population.

AT CATHEDRAL TO-MORROW

In the Sunday evening course of sermons on "Certain Great Writers Have Seen in the Face of Christ," being delivered in Christ Church Cathedral by the Very Rev. C. S. Quainton, the Dean, subject for to-morrow night will be Nathaniel Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," one of the greatest of American novels.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, FORT GEORGE

The contract for the construction of a fine new Presbyterian church, to be located at the North-west corner of Fifth Avenue and Brunswick St., Prince George, was awarded last week to the firm of Messrs. J. H. Macdonald and Son, Ltd., of Vancouver. The contract was signed immediately after the receipt of approval from the church's headquarters at Toronto.

Work will commence almost immediately on the building, which will be 60 x 30 feet, with a vestry wing 24 by 15, and a 40-foot tower in one corner of the building.

The first and so far the only church building in Endako, was opened by Archbishop DuVerney, assisted by Rev. William Sweetman, the clergyman in charge, recently, when there were baptismal, confirmation, and communion services, and a special dedicatory service attended by nearly all the people of the place irrespective of denominational differences.

The Bishop expressed his appreciation of the generosity of friends belonging to the Cathedral, and the Parish Church of Lisburn, Ireland, that it had been erected as a memorial to the soldiers who fell in the Great War. Lisnagarvey was the old name for Lisburn.

CANON LEAKEY RECEIVES PURSE

FREE CHURCHES SEEK ACTION OF PARLIAMENT

Resolutions of the National Free Council of Evangelical Churches, including Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive and United Methodist and the Society of Friends, meeting recently at Liverpool, call for a national campaign to urge parliamentary action for local option in England and Wales.

It also is asked that there be Sunday closing of liquor shops throughout England; that the sale of liquor to persons under 18 be prohibited; that the supply of liquors in clubs be made subject to the grant of an annual license by the local justice, and that there be further restrictions of grocers', chemists' and confectioners' licenses.

The Council asks that local organizations test candidates for parliament as to their position on the liquor question.

Who Pays For Advertising?

THIS is a direct and reasonable question; and in the case of Daily Newspaper advertising, intelligently used, the answer is simple: Nobody. It pays its own way.

Nobody pays for the new carburetor that gives added mileage to your motor car. It pays for itself in the gasoline it saves.

Nobody pays for an improved cash system in a modern department store. It pays for itself in economy of human time.

Nobody pays for well planned and written Daily Newspaper advertising. It pays for itself by reducing the cost of sales and by increasing production. And it often receipts old bills for follies with advertising labels.

The advertisement in your own local Daily Newspaper tells you the best things to buy and where to buy them. Every new purchase helps the whole community to command cheaper and better goods.

Canadian National and Grand Trunk lines.

Members of the committees had reported that there was a general impression abroad that all railway employees were receiving higher wages on the average than men in other trades and Mr. Mosher, in commenting on these reports, declared that the wages received by most of the lower paid employees on Canadian railways could not be described as more than "a mere subsistence allowance."

Forty-Hour Week.

"A large number of men we represent," said Mr. Mosher, "such as roundhouse and shop laborers, are permitted to work only forty hours a week. The average wage received by these men amounts to $16—sometimes less. The proposed reductions would lower the pay to less than $15 a week."

"Railway employees receiving abnormally high wages are very few in number and not included among our members. The average wage of all our members would not exceed $10 a month," he asserted.

"There is a limit to the endurance of these men. They are not permitted to work more than a fair day's work and loyalty and expect in return a fair day's pay. If they can not look to the management of the railways for their livelihood, it is time for the people to interest themselves in the problem and make sure that justice is done."

In United States.

Chicago, July 22.—The railroad strike in the United States entered its fourth week to-day with the announcement from the clerk's union headquarters that 18,000 additional office employees in various sections had voted to strike. Apparently all peace negotiations were at a standstill, with both sides determined to hold firm to their original positions.

Chief interest to-day centered in Washington, where Chairman Hooper of the Railroad Labor Board was called for a conference with President Harding.

upon by the Commission as a first condition of any respite.

Coal and Coke.

The Commission announced in an official communication that it had decided to deliver to Germany only 1,725,000 tons of coal and coke during the period from August 1 to October 31, inclusive. The former schedule of deliveries called for 3,750,000 tons per quarter.

The decision provides that should the total production of coal and coke in Germany during that period be greater than 3,750,000 tons, twenty per cent. of the surplus should go to the Allies.

Austria.

The Commission has approved in principle the request of the Austrian Government for the release of certain state revenues to be used as collateral or the foundation of a bank of issue and for a foreign loan.

London, July 22 (Canadian Press Cable).—The London newspapers state that a Mrs. Nicol, daughter of a farmer of Stony Kirk, near Starnawer, has been informed by a firm of Toronto solicitors that she has come into a legacy of £25,000 under the will of her late husband, David Nicol, of the Canadian Forestry Corps, whom she married while working at a Gretna munitions factory during the war.

Boy! Page Mr. Einstein

THE shortest distance between a seller and a buyer is a straight line. If there is any shorter, let us page Mr. Einstein and ask him about it.

In advertising, the Daily Newspaper is the most direct line possible, and the customer you seek keeps the kinks out of it. He sees that he gets his newspaper at the earliest possible moment. He is not satisfied to wait until the postman delivers something that has been "directed" to him at his home address.

When the daily newspaper passes into the reader's hands, it is expected, welcomed and read. It has his interest before it even gets to him. He will complain loudly to the news dealer if an issue escapes him. He will stand in the heat and the cold while the news boy fumbles for change. When the delivery brings the daily paper to a home, it is taken in eagerly by someone.

Did anyone ever telephone your office to complain that your circular or form letter had not arrived? Have you ever noticed men waiting in line for the postman to deliver your printed matter? Have you ever seen the daily newspaper flipped off the desk or the supper table while second class mail is read to the family? Until you have, let us be honest and distinguish between "direct" advertising and printed matter "directed" to your address.

REGULATIONS TO GOVERNANCE OF CHEQUES

How Embossing Will Be Carried Out

Regulations have been received by the Customs Department governing the embossing of cheques drawn for more than fifty dollars ($50), operative under the new Finance Act.

These regulations are on file at the local Customs House, where they may be seen by persons or firms affected.

Cheques embossed with words indicating that the stamp tax thereon has been paid may be used by persons, firms or corporations to whom a license is issued in accordance with the following regulations, made under the provisions of section four of the Act of 1922 to amend the Special War Revenue Act, 1915:

Application for a license shall be forwarded through the Collector of the nearest Customs and Excise Port to the Commissioner of Customs and Excise, Ottawa, hereinafter called the "Commissioner."

The representations made in such application shall be verified by the applicant, who shall be required to furnish a certificate, showing the serial number, as required by the license, together with a certified cheque, by way of deposit, payable to the Receiver-General for an amount equivalent to the estimated tax, as per sections 1 (a) and 1 (c) on application for license plus twenty-five per cent.

The Commissioner may at any time require a larger deposit.

Cheques will be embossed and issued to a licensee in the manner and subject to the conditions hereinafter defined.

A licensee shall keep an account in which shall be entered, at the time each cheque is drawn, particulars of the cheque, showing the serial number, the date of issue, the amount and the sum due as excise tax thereon. A separate account shall be kept for each bank or branch of a bank on which the licensee draws cheques. On or before the fifth day of each month the licensee shall forward through the Collector of Customs and Excise at the port through which the license was obtained to the Commissioner the account or accounts, as the case may be, for the preceding month, showing the serial number, the date of issue, the amount and the sum due as excise tax thereon.

SAGGING TENDENCY
IN CHICAGO GRAINS

Chicago, July 22.—It was a weak market for the start in grain, with little news such as might ordinarily create strength having little or no influence. The subject of much comment yesterday was a market factor, the idea being that railroad labor difficulties will not be adjusted and will be followed by an influx of grain from the country of proportions to overwhelm the demand.

Corn started out with a firm tone, but the weakness in wheat soon induced sagging in the other grains. Receipts were moderate, and cash prices in consequence were relatively steady.

AUTOMOTIVE MEN WERE GREAT HOSTS

Guests Pleased With Outing at Deep Bay

The hundreds of men, women and children who shared in the monster picnic at Deep Bay Thursday will not soon forget the ample proportions of the hospitality extended to everyone by the Victoria Automotive Dealers and the consensus of opinion that never before in the history of Victoria outings has there been recorded such a wonderful success from every standpoint.

The various committees, whose names were published in The Times on Thursday, worked indefatigably and the result could not have been otherwise. The verdict of the guests was unanimous that never before had they enjoyed such a splendid outing.

R. E. or "Rube" McMoran is given credit for conceiving the idea of the annual picnic of the Automotive Industry. There is only one source of regret in connection with the affair and that is that the scores of cars which attended the outing did not parade through the city streets en route to Deep Bay. It is safe to say that the public would have been amazed at the extent of the turnout.

H. E. or "Bill" Bayley kept his nose to the grind stone throughout the day and as chairman of the committee having most of the sports arrangements in hand he was here there and everywhere at the same time. "Bill" was a busy man and there were others. The chairmen and members of the committees certainly worked well, and they were always about with smiling faces.

There was not a mishap of any kind and everything went off without a hitch. Next year's event will be looked forward to with pleasure considering the delightful entertainment the picnickers were treated to Thursday.

FINE SUPPLIES FOR CAMP LIFE

Local Concern Manufactures Everything Needed

In these days when there is a great advocacy of the principle of patronizing home production and home industries, it is to be noted that the campers on Vancouver Island need no further than Victoria in order to secure all that might be required in the way of camp equipment and camp supplies.

At Jeune Brothers Limited, 570 Johnson Street, The Times was shown over one of the most complete and varied stocks of camp supplies to be found anywhere. Vancouver Island is a great camping country and Jeune Bros. showed sufficient enterprise to get in the field early to provide for the campers' needs. Everything that is new and up-to-date in the way of camping conveniences is turned out by the local concern.

From tents to tent beds, stoves and cooking utensils of all kinds, the firm has cleverly turned the use of canvas to good account. The wonderful manner in which everything is made to fold up into the most compact shape in order that it may be carried easily in an automobile or in a pack is very interesting. Nearly everything in camp life these days folds up and is made of the lightest yet most serviceable materials in order to give the camper every satisfaction and enable him to get from one place to another and set up "house" with the least amount of trouble.

Of course, as is usual in the case of establishments of this kind, Jeune Bros. manufacture and carry a full line of awnings, sails and flags. As yachting is one of the most favorite pastimes in Victoria the firm does a very considerable business in sails and is qualified to handle jobs of almost any description in this line.

Fred Jeune is now the manager of the local concern and he is always prepared to show visitors over the plant or to advise as to the best equipment to use under varying circumstances of travel by forest and stream.

Alice Brady has started work in "Missing Millions" at Famous Players-Lasky's Long Island City studios. The production is said to be the entering wedge for this company's resumption of full production activities in the East.

"HOT DOG" WAS SERVED GRATIS

Automotive Men Great Hosts at Picnic

"This way for the Hot Dog," was a call speedily responded to at the Automotive Dealers' picnic at Deep Bay on Thursday when "Red" Randsdale of George Little's Automotive Equipment House and "Billy" Glover of Tergeon Brothers' Tire Shop presided at the open air kitchen erected on the grounds for the purpose of purveying free luncheons to all and sundry.

When a bell was rung everybody knew the "Hot Dog" was ready and there was a mad rush for the counter. Needless to say these two men were two of the hardest worked through the day. In the morning they had boiled a huge pot full of "weenies" and prepared oceans of onions, celery and other good things which were very welcome in the vegetable line. At a neatly laid-out counter the various foods were distributed to all who cared to help themselves and there was a big demand for the coffee buns into which the sausage were sandwiched.

A huge cauldron of boiling water was kept ready for those wishing to make tea or coffee and free sugar and other necessities were supplied.

At the counter nearby many active members of the association served generously and patiently all day long the huge supplies of ice cream and soft drinks and other refreshments.

The famous Polar Cakes and Velvet Ice cream manufactured by the North-western Creamery was in great demand. The kiddies flocked to the tables and there was no stint in the supply furnished them. In fact, the demand was so great that despite the ample provisions that had been made by the refreshment committee, it was found necessary to send into the city for further supplies.

PICNIC NOTES

W. H. Armitage, Dunlop Tire manager is a man of weight when it comes to playing the part of anchor man in a tug-of-war. It was noticed, however, at Thursday's picnic that in between time he was to be found lying on his back in the shade of his car recovering his breath for the next effort.

Percy Gill, manager for Gutta Percha, was swift of arm when it came to tossing the pill in the baseball games but his feet did not work so fast when it came to making time between bases. Nevertheless he did pretty well for a fat man.

"Give him air. Give him air," was the chorus shouted by the tire men when the greasy pig fell foul of an ex-rugby expert who landed on top of the animal with a strangle hold that would have staggered "Mixed Biscuits," or whatever that big wrestler's name is. Note—That pig is not a "him."

Incidentally, there were four claimants to the title of first having "caught" that pig. There was Harry Hutchinson Sr. who was maddest of all, over not receiving the victory award because he had most of the pig's grease on his clothing. Then there was Howard Little, whose face was extremely dirty after the struggle and there is very considerable doubt as to the legitimacy of the claim put forward by George Simpson, because everyone knows what a jollier he is anyway and last but not least there was F. V. Randsdale.

Talk about a "lumpy" pig! Every time someone was just about to seize Mr. Porker by the rear hock, what would Bill Bayley do but fire off a pistol and everybody jumped—including the pig. There was nothing automotive about that pig.

There was great satisfaction expressed when it was learned that the raffie of the pig brought in $50 for the Merville fire sufferers.

Shortly after the name of the winner in the pig raffie was announced—the pig at this moment supposed to be lying quietly in a wooden crate—a cry arose from the dancing pavilion: "There goes the pig. The pig is out." Consternation reigned supreme. A wild chase over moor and fen began which terminated unsuccessfully for the pig, at the water's edge and it was returned to durance vile.

It was a grand and glorious party as everybody agreed. The dancing on the pavilion was kept up to a late hour and the music was greatly appreciated.

The manner in which Jack Cartier handled the baseball games was a thing of joy to see. Nobody knew that Jack could play ball and there are some who are still in doubt on that question. The games produced much excitement.

The way some of the ladies sprinted and the speed they displayed was enough to make the timid man think twice. A man would need to be fleet of foot to make away in case of a Maggie and Jiggs episode if all women ran like some of the fair sex did on Thursday.

"Gee, I'm going to be sick to-morrow," was one little girl's way of expressing her entire satisfaction with the way canteen supplies were coming through.

"Jim" Rennie was a pretty busy man for a heavyweight on a warm day. He didn't speak in whispers either—though it was necessary to use the megaphone.

If it hadn't been for "Pat"—there is only one Pat that we know of in the Automotive business in Victoria—there never would have been a picture taken. Pat climbed on the gate post and hovered until he got the vast crowd assembled before the camera-man.

There were so many good fellows and their ladies assisting in the entertainment that it is rather a hazardous undertaking to mention some names because all cannot be included but they were all there anyway and everybody knows them. God Bless them.

One of the quaintest stories in American literature (and one of the best known and most widely read) is Washington Irving's "Legend of Sleepy Hollow" that treats of "The Headless Horseman of the Hessians."

PICNIC GROUNDS ARE NOW IMPROVED

Deep Bay—Splendid Location for Motor Parties

The automotive dealers of Victoria appreciated the improvement made in the Deep Bay picnic grounds through the construction of a fine fence around the picnic area which insures protection against stray cattle and other animals roaming over the grounds and creating a nuisance.

The big party which picnicked at the bay Thursday motored the twenty-three miles from Victoria to the bay in good time and was delighted to find such excellent parking facilities on the road leading past the B. C. Electric Interurban station, both sides of which, road have been fenced.

The courtesy of the B. C. Electric Railway Company in contributing the use of the park for the Automotive Dealers' picnic was greatly appreciated by the local automobile and accessory men, who expressed the highest praise for the excellent arrangements at Deep Bay for holding such events. They were also appreciative of the efforts of Mrs. Crosswell, lessee of the Chalet to insure the comfort of those who took in the picnic.

It is reported that improvements in the grounds are contemplated and that the whole area will be ploughed over and levelled off in order to better facilitate the carrying out of various kinds of sports. There are scores of shady little nooks at Deep Bay where basket parties can make themselves comfortable and there is had for making liquid refreshments. Though there were so many family and friendly parties at the picnic, there was plenty of room in the shade for all.

The bathing beach at the Cove is also another strong attraction for picnickers. The water at the bay is exposed to the sun throughout the entire day and is quite warm and an afternoon dip proves very refreshing in the series of picnic sports.

OVER NEW HIGHWAY

Traveling in a McLaughlin master six car, R. Law, a Canadian Pacific engineer at Revelstoke, reached Vernon on Saturday, having come all the way by car. This is the first time that a motor car has been able to come direct to the Okanagan from Revelstoke under its own power.

Mr. Law said that his traveling time was but a few hours and that with the exception of only a few hundred feet, the road was in fair condition.

FLORENCE ROBERTS IN "GIMME"

Florence Roberts, stage star of many notable productions, and her husband, Frederick Vogeding, noted Dutch actor, have been added to the cast of "Gimme," by Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, which Mr. Hughes is now directing at the Goldwyn studio. On the stage Miss Roberts was starred in "A Doll's House," "Camille," "Carmen" and many other plays. Helen Chadwick is playing the leading feminine role in "Gimme."

MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR ROAD OPENING

Revelstoke-Okanagan Road to Be Opened Next Month

The Revelstoke-Okanagan Auto Road will be officially opened on Thursday, August 17. The ceremony will take place at Malakwa, which is midway between Revelstoke and Enlerry and only four miles from where the late Lord Strathcona drove the "Golden Spike" marking the completion of the C. P. R. on November 11, 1885.

Then Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, who fathered the construction of this road since its inception, will be assisted on this important occasion by the Premier and most of the Cabinet.

It is expected that at least a thousand people will journey to Malakwa for the event, for it marks the completion of a road that will not only give the people of Revelstoke their first outlet, other than by C. P. R., but will give people from other parts of the Province and the States, their first opportunity of reaching Revelstoke by car, from which point they can enjoy the beautiful auto trip up Revelstoke Mountain, which is one of the finest in America.

The opening ceremony at Malakwa will start promptly at 1.30 o'clock and close in sufficient time to allow auto parties to journey on to Revelstoke or return to the Okanagan in time for dinner.

The opening hour is also arranged so that auto parties may leave their homes in Revelstoke, Salmon Arm and Okanagan Valley points in the morning, arrive in Malakwa between eleven and twelve o'clock eat their picnic lunches, where suitable grounds will be provided with hot and cold water and other comforts.

The Red Cross Society and others will sell ice cream and light refreshments, but all are advised to bring a "basket luncheon."

A trip up the Auto Road on Revelstoke Mountain is being arranged for Friday, August 18.

WOMEN AS "SAFETY DOCTORS" TO CHECK MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 22.—"If every club woman in the United States would confer on herself the degree of 'doctor of safety,' traffic accidents would soon be virtually done away with," said John C. Long of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, speaking before the General Federation of Women's Clubs here.

"Twenty-eight cities lowered their traffic fatality records in 1921," he said. "Credit for this decrease belongs to local 'doctors of safety,' who diagnosed the trouble and then applied strong remedies. The increase of motor vehicles to the number of 3,000,000 in use to-day has come about so rapidly that we have been staggered by the traffic problem. "Among the causes of accidents are careless driving, poor parking accommodations, children playing in the streets, insufficient playgrounds, bad street lighting, narrow street limits, inadequate police force."

"For remedies one may turn to Detroit which has large playgrounds and elaborate safety instruction in the schools; to Cleveland which has junior patrols and to other cities where the local schools and associations are making their highways more safe."

Will Rogers has been cast for the role of "Ichabod Crane," the whimsical schoolmaster, in a film version of this classic which will shortly be put in production in the original locale near Tarrytown, N. Y., and an excellent cast will be seen in his support. Car S. Clancy, who also scenarized the story, is the producer.

will stand the strain of any kind of Driving

Tires must stand use and abuse and take the driving as it comes. Of course, careful driving is easy on tires—slow stops and slow starts help out the mileage, but they are not what the spirited driver is addicted to and he will not change his ways. There's a tire to suit all requirements—swift driving, racing or touring—hill climbing, quick starting when the traffic cop says "Go"—non-skidding in wet weather—and all the emergencies of city streets and country roads. There's a strength in "Gutta Percha" Tires which makes them stand the strain of hard driving.

PRICE: Some Tires cost more than others. This is not because the manufacturer insists on a bigger profit but because he has put more actual cost into the making. You get what you pay for in this world. It pays to pay the price and get "Gutta Percha" Tires.

TRY LIFE WITH COURAGE AND FACE YOUR DESTINY

Georges Clemenceau Gives the Wisdom of His Eighty Years to Inexperience of Eighteen.

FAMILIARLY, in words beautiful in their very simplicity, Georges Clemenceau, the Old Tiger of France, has gone back to the scenes of his early schooldays, to the old Lyceum at the coast port of Nantes, to offer advice. "Henceforth, I can desire only one thing—to give advice," he said.

Georges Clemenceau

In stirring words that have already spread over all France, he uttered from his heart the lessons of his own tormented life for the youth of today. "Yes," he said, "I have passed my youth in this old, moldy lyceum. I was a little fellow, even I, in the last century. At that time young people were not very reasonable. They lifted an insolent nose, opened a cynical mouth; but there was always sunlight in their eyes. They since became men. "I was very content when I quitted the lyceum, content—more than content. They had not rendered me very unhappy here, however, and I recognized later that all my little worries were due only to myself. You will say the same thing in your turn.

"But in order to keep the account straight it is necessary to learn how great is the battle which awaits young people. For life is only an assemblage of duties and of struggles; a struggle for the right to found a family and to make it live and prosper; a struggle for the right to love those who surround us; a battle of courage, of nobility, of generosity.

"I did not know this then, and perhaps you do not know it today. I did not even feel it. Life for me seemed to be a great game which one had only to enter to be accepted by amiable people saying charming things.

"I had not quitted this old, moldy house in which the professors were very much more stern and less agreeable than are those of today when I entered at once on life. I was no worse than any other boy. But I soon perceived that there were more blows to receive than to give when one escapes from the attentive care of the family, when one is alone in this great Paris with rivals who in examinations and in trials pass in front of you without your permission.

"I fell back on myself and searched immediately for a way out for the future development of my spirit. I went back to the old shelves where were the old books of the lyceum. I took them up again and reread them, and then my thoughts returned to the good professors, those men who knew so many things and who had given us the best part of them.

"Intelligence is a precious thing. But there is something which will take you further—heart, affection, love. There will never be professors of the heart and there need not be any. Each of us knows what his duties are. Only it is necessary to be capable of fulfilling them and to have the spirit of discipline."

"Yes, my dear friends, doubtless I shall never see again your lyceum, but you will live in my thoughts, in my memory.

"Forget me! Roll up your sleeves and face your destiny!"

Economy in Features

IN a few vivid lines, Alfred Frueh, one of the cleverest satirists of the United States, has caught the personality of the distinguished actor, John Drew. Frueh works with rigid economy of means, and can construct a living portrait with a few telling strokes. He deals in salients almost exclusively, and so keen is his observation that he is able to sum up a personality in a single feature or lineament.

MENTION NO BACON TO ME.

S. W. JACOBS, M.P., who sits for the George Etienne Cartier division of Montreal, is the only member of the House of Commons who is a Jew. He has a very keen sense of humor and a quick tongue. His exchanges of wit and repartee with Mr. Meighen are always greatly enjoyed by the other members. Not long ago, the leader of the opposition said something about the honorable member for the George Etienne Cartier division of Montreal "bringing home the bacon." Quick as a flash Mr. Jacobs retorted: "Don't mention bacon to me."—Genevieve Lipsett-Skinner.

Ralph Connor Admires A Good Joke on Himself

Principal Oliver of Saskatoon Comes
Twice to See the Point of a Joke.

RALPH CONNOR, the Canadian preacher and author, who has endeared himself to the Canadian public by his many books, can appreciate a joke even when it is on himself. At the recent general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Winnipeg, he sustained the severest test to the pride of a humorist all in good part.

Ralph Connor.

The Rev. Chas. W. Gordon, as he is in everyday life, was addressing a gathering of the Manitoba College students. Suddenly he recollected that the night before while speaking to the Knox College alumni he had used the joke he was about to spring again, and that it was probable that some of his audience would thus hear it twice.

"I hope none of you were present last night," said Ralph Connor, glancing at the faces that were expectantly waiting in suspense.

No sooner had he voiced his hope when he caught sight of Principal Oliver, of Saskatoon. The beautiful joke registered sadness in the noted author's face.

"That's all right. That's all right," Principal Oliver cried out. "Go ahead. I didn't see the point last night."

IN TELEGRAPHIC DREAM DYING ACTOR APPEARS

REMARKABLE experience, suggestive of telepathic communication, is related regarding James R. Hackett, the American actor, by Mrs. Aris, the English journalist, whose memoirs have just appeared. It was following a conversation he had with Harry Irving, who, unable to act Iago to Hackett's Othello, suggested Laurence Irving for the part:

"The following night Hackett, awaking suddenly from his sleep, told of a terrible nightmare, with a ship in distress, of a drowned man on the beach, and of many awful moments which had gone in a vain attempt to revive him. "S t r a n g e," he repeated to his wife, Beatrice Beckley, "it is all so vivid, so clear, and we tried hard to bring him round."

"In the morning a New York paper published a portrait of Laurence Irving with the news that he had been drowned.

"That is the face of the man of my dream," cried Hackett, as he looked at the pictured page; "that is his face, and he was so pale, and the water ran from his hair. I shall never forget it."

Macaulay Finds Rest In Detective Yarns

Farming and Short Stories are the Hobbies of This Big Insurance Chief.

ANOTHER prominent business man with a flair for detective stories is Thomas B. Macaulay, managing director of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

Puzzling to frequenters of some of the large Toronto book stores any Saturday afternoon is the keen demand by many of the most outstanding executive heads of great companies for "a good detective yarn." It can be explained, according to Mr. Macaulay, as a desire to forget about business in the intense interest of a detective plot.

"What do you read?" Mr. Macaulay has been asked by the Independent Magazine, and he replies:

"When I leave the office I try to forget business and finance. My thoughts then run to one or the other of my hobbies, the principal being my farm on the Ottawa River, which to me takes the place of golf. We have transformed it into an experiment station, where work is being done in the way of developing strains of corn which will suit our short season, and, I hope, move the corn belt a hundred miles further north. We are also trying to solve other distinctly Canadian agricultural problems. This work has become extensive and highly interesting. No reading appeals to me more than books or bulletins on plant-breeding or the laws of heredity, for we have a herd of milking Shorthorns. I cannot advise your readers to follow my example.

"For fiction, I confess that I prefer the short story, with a liking for tales of mystery, though I know none to compare to those of Sherlock Holmes or humorous stories like those of W. W. Jacobs."

A Chicken Dinner for Warren

In this picture, full of human interest, Dr. Geo. T. Harding, father of the president of the United States, was caught unexpectedly by the camera man in the very act of killing one of the chickens in preparation for Warren's dinner. There was a happy reunion between Warren and his father when the president and Mrs. Harding paid a visit to the home town of Marion, Ohio, recently to help the townsfolk celebrate the Marion Centennial.

Tender-Hearted Professor Walks Two Miles To Liberate a Mouse He Had Caught in a Trap

At This Distance Prof. Milner Thought Both His Purpose and the Dictates of Mercy
Would Be Served by Exile Rather Than Death.

THE tender-heartedness of Prof. Milner of Toronto University is proverbial. It is related that on one occasion a hapless student in the stress of examinations informed the professor that the age of Augustus was made famous through the production of the Homeric poems. Instead of plucking the man outright the professor protested that after all the student must have been thinking of Virgil, and that, as his intentions were good, he deserved to pass.

But the most severe test of the professor's merciful spirit came one vacation at his summer home. Quite contrary to custom the house was infested with mice. It was, however, only after urgent entreaties that the professor was persuaded to go eleven miles to Lindsay, and buy a mouse trap. Even then his humane feeling dictated the purchase of a catch-them-alive machine. The trap worked beautifully, so much so that the professor had a captive on the very first morning. It was suggested that the mouse should be drowned. Unequal to holding the untimely fate of his victim in broad daylight, the professor postponed the hour of execution till dusk.

As a group of friends were returning from a walk two miles from home in the evening, they met the professor plodding across the fields with a mouse trap in his hand.

"Why, what are you doing here, Billy," one of them asked.

"I've just come to liberate that unfortunate mouse."

While the professor had no exact knowledge of the "homing" instincts of mice, he had come to the conclusion that his victim would never bother him again.

Young London Worships the King and Queen.

CHEER upon cheer, re-echoing across the river to the Surrey shore, welcomed the King and Queen to Shadwell when they went to unveil the memorial to King Edward VII. and to open the King Edward memorial park. The popularity of the King and Queen and the royal family increases as the years go by. Strong men, women old and young, and children shouted themselves hoarse in giving greeting to the royal couple.

When a Love Letter Is a Business Form

Mr. Van Every's Model Letter Has Helped Many a Young Farmer to Propose.

M. R. J. F. VAN EVERY, B.A., the popular instructor in English at the University schools, is considered a provincial authority on matters of form in language. Recently a Toronto publishing house asked Mr. Van Every to edit a book on business correspondence. The most authentic and precise directions were given as to how checks, promissory notes and receipts should be written. The publisher was delighted, as his eyes passed from page to page of Mr. Van Every's flowing style and lucid explanation. However, at the close he turned to the author with just one touch of disappointment in his voice.

"Mr. Van Every, your book lacks only one model."

"What is that?"

"A convincing love letter."

"But that is not a business form."

"Oh, oh, but the boys on the farm don't know how to write a love letter, and will be grateful for your assistance."

Mr. Van Every's heart was touched. The book has had a very wide sale.

Homely Expressions Used by the Prince

Windsor Castle Is as Democratic and Simple as Any Other Home.

IF there were a republic in England to-morrow, the first president to be elected would be the King, the second would be the Prince of Wales, and they would both be elected for life.

Henketh Pearson, an English journalist, is sure of this.

One of the causes of the Prince's popularity is that he believes in, and acts up to, the principles of equality. Nothing could have been easier than for him to have shirked dangerous work in the late war. Indeed, he succeeded in getting up to the front only after a battle royal with the authorities.

Every device was tried to keep him out of the danger-zone, but nothing could withstand the unassailable logic of the Prince's attitude, which was summed up by himself on one occasion in these words: "Just because I'm the son of my mother, is that any reason why I should be treated differently to any other mother's son?"

It would be easy to multiply instances of his utterly unpretentious democratic outlook, his lack of "side," his sense of humor; but there is one incident which paints him to life.

During his military duties at the front he made friends with a junior subaltern in Kitchen's army. After the war he met this friend in the street, shook hands warmly with him and said: "You must come down to Windsor and stay with my people." The friend, not associating at the moment such a homely expression as "my people" with the King and Queen, readily accepted the invitation, and afterwards nearly died with fright when he realized what he had let himself in for.

However, he found out that "my people" could be just as homely and charming as anyone else's people, and from the moment he entered Windsor Castle he became one of a very simple and very delightful family circle.

No Special Trains For Lynching Bees

By SUZANNE DONELLEY.

GENEVIEVE LIPSETT-SKINNER, who has been in the parliamentary press gallery during the recent session of parliament, remarked recently that the demands of the western farmers for the restoration of the Crow's Nest Pass agreement reminded her of an experience she had a year ago down south. Mrs. Skinner was lecturing on a Chataqua circuit in Mississippi, when she came across a group of irate farmers holding an indignation meeting near the local railway station. Her old reportorial habits made her stop to inquire what all the fuss was about.

A man, who appeared to be the Mr. Speaker of the gathering, obligingly explained. "It's like this, miss. We started out in our automobiles to go thirty miles up the line to lynch a fellow who deserves to be hung. The roads are bad, and we couldn't get through—so we came over to the depot and phoned the district superintendent of this here one horse railway. I told him we wanted a special train sent down at once. He asked what for, and I told him we had a little lynching party planned for this evening, and that the roads were too heavy for motor cars. He replied that he was sorry, but he couldn't possibly send the special train. So we are just passing a resolution censuring the railway company for the poor service it gives us farmers."

COMMISSIONER SAID 'YAW' TO WIN A DEVOTED WIFE

Commissioner Sowton of the Salvation
Army Was Married in a Strange Tongue.

MANY strange things have happened to Commissioner Sowton, the popular new leader of the Salvation Army in Canada east, but none more weird to him, he says, than the day he was married in Norwegian to his devoted wife.

That was more than thirty years ago. Commissioner Sowton has been an officer in the Army for thirty-nine years, thirty-five of which have been spent outside of England. As a young man he was stationed in Norway, and while there his future wife came out to join him. Immediately upon her arrival at Christiania, they announced their intention of getting married. It would have to be done in Norwegian, they were told.

The commissioner was not at that time the expert linguist he is now. The service was proceeding rapidly. Every little while a prompter whispered loudly into his ear, "yaw," which is how "yes" sounds in Norwegian. Even to this day the commissioner and his wife have their doubts sometimes whether they said "yaw" in the right place. But hanging on the wall of the commissioner's home at Toronto is the fateful document in Norwegian which declares that he and Mrs. Sowton have really, whether they believe it or not, said "yaw" in the right place.

From the maze of memories since that very important day Commissioner Sowton often recalls incidents, sad or humorous, in which he and his wife have figured together, for they have been great travelers. Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Iceland, India, Ceylon and Alaska, in all of these countries he has spent several years.

An incident among the Indians of Alaska, although apparently against himself, is in reality a compliment. What impressed the Indian most of all was Mrs. Sowton's handsome appearance and her general friendliness.

In his tersely comic way, one of the principal Indian chiefs summarized his impressions thus: "Commissioner—he a big man—deep voice—very proud. Mrs. Sowton she shake hands everybody."

Beauty and Billiards

LADY ROCKSAVAGE is the best woman billiards player in England, and from the evening the Prince of Wales first met her at his father's house in Brighton, when the countess beat King George at billiards, the Prince felt he had met rather an uncommon woman. That was several years ago. Since this meeting, he has learned from her teaching to speak French and to play tennis and billiards, all quite well. The countess is also rifle shot champion of England.

The Countess of Rocksavage, who is very popular in society, was Miss Sybil Sassoon, the only daughter of the late Sir Edward Sassoon, and sister of Sir Philip Sassoon, the present baronet and secretary to Lloyd George.

The sensation of the Royal Academy exhibits this year was concentrated in two pictures of this beautiful English woman, one of them by a young painter named Sims, and the other by Sargent.

Sardine as a Fever Saver

REJOICING in the fact that yellow fever will soon disappear from South America, the "Petit Parisien" invokes thanks to the sardines. It is known that the fever is communicated by the bite of a mosquito that lives in the swamps.

Now it has been noticed that a species of sardine, the shatta, gets easily acclimated in fresh water and, what is more, it manifests a very marked predilection for the larvae of mosquitoes.

One can easily guess the sequel. The shattas, netted in great numbers, are thrown into the marshes, where they destroy the larvae. No more mosquitoes, no more fever.

Thus the sardine takes its place among the benefactors of humanity!

Twin Suns Many Times Bigger Than Our Sun Discovered by Plaskett at Observatory Here

With Temperatures of 30,000 Degrees Fahrenheit, They Are 20,000 Times Brighter Than the Sun; Find Is Heralded By Scientists As Greatest Astronomical Achievement in Recent Times.

Twin suns, fifty-two quadrillions of miles from the earth, have been discovered by Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here, through the observatory's big 72-inch reflector telescope.

Scientists herald the discovery as the outstanding astronomical achievement of recent times. The suns have been named Plaskett after their discoverer.

The light, which, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, started from these suns 5,000 years before there was any credible human history on this earth, is reaching here only to-day.

An aeroplane traveling from this earth at the rate of 300 miles an hour would require 30,000 million years to reach these twin suns.

They burn at a temperature of 30,000 degrees Fahrenheit as they whirl around one another. One, the more massive, is seventy-five times the bulk of our sun; the lesser is sixty-three times heavier.

One is 15,000 times as bright as the sun, the other 12,000 times as bright. Comparisons that entirely numb the imagination, Plaskett is more than five times as large as any other known heavenly body.

"We cannot always convey intelligently to the lay mind the grasp we sometimes get on things infinitely said Professor Harold Jacoby of Columbia University, noted astronomical authority, when he learned of the Plaskett discovery.

Ten thousand light years is some distance away and the light from this great double star has taken some time to reach this planet. It started long before man was able to conceive the thought so ably expressed by the psalmist over 3,000 years ago when he sang: "A thousand years in Thy sight is but as yesterday," but its spectrum recorded on photographic plates tells us more about its existence than we ever expected to have revealed to us in our day.

The measurements recorded by Dr. Plaskett may be accepted as most reliable. His consistent and constant work photographing its spectra has given us the speed of both the

PLASKETT AND OTHER BODIES

Diagram shows distance between planets from the earth in comparison with distance between earth and Plaskett.

On December 16, 1921, and the lines in the spectrum showed that the star was not a single star, but a double star. The spectrum of the elements hydrogen, helium, nitrogen, silicon, calcium and possibly oxygen and magnesium. Further, the general character of the spectrum as regards the intensity of the different parts and the arrangement and strength of the elements pointed to a rather rare class of stars, believed to be not only the very hottest of the stars but also the most massive. We have good reason to believe that this star is at a temperature of about 30,000 degrees Fahrenheit, several times as hot as it is considered to be in our laboratories, and that it is also consequently very bright.

Forty Times Brighter Than Sun

"We have good evidence to show that if we consider two small areas of this star and our Sun—say a square inch on each—the amount of light given out for a square inch on the star would be about forty times as great as the amount of light from a square inch of the sun. That is to say, if the star and our sun were the same size the star would be forty times as bright as the sun.

"But examination of this first spectrum showed in addition that many of the lines due to hydrogen and helium were not single, as is ordinarily the case, but were double, the two parts of each line being displayed one part to the right and one part to the left of the normal position. The double lines are a sure indication that the object analyzed consists not of one but of two stars too close together to be separated by any telescope but yet each showing its presence by forming its individual lines in the spectrum.

High Speed Shown

"The separation of these lines shows how fast the two stars are moving and the displacement on each side of the normal position shows that one is moving toward us and the other away from us. In this particular case the strongest lines, those evidently belonging to the brighter star, were moving away from us at the rate of 101 miles a second, while the weaker lines belonging to the fainter star showed a motion toward us at the rate of 115 miles a second.

Stars Showing Such Changing Displacements

"Stars showing such changing displacements of the spectrum lines are called spectroscopic binaries from their discovery by the spectroscopic method. The ordinary visual binary, which appears double in the telescope. In the most spectroscopic binaries only one spectrum can be seen and the binary character is shown by the varying displacements of the lines corresponding to changing velocity. There have been about 800 spectroscopic binaries discovered, of which this observatory is responsible for nearly one-quarter, but less than one-fifth of these show double lines and in only a very few is the velocity so great as above.

Strong Gravitational Pull

"The very high speed of these two stars—and it seemed likely that the distance of the perihelion of Mercury, which we had to do with an exceptional speed, either that the pair were very massive, or very close to one another, or both. Consequently spectra were photographed as frequently as possible and the positions of the double lines were seen to be continually changing. Sometimes the stronger lines were displaced to the red and the weaker to the violet end of the spectrum, but at other times the opposite was the case. The former indicated that the brighter star was receding, the fainter approaching us, and vice versa.

"Further spectra showed that the brighter star was revolving at a speed of 128 miles a second and the fainter at 144 miles a second and that it took nearly fourteen and a half days to make a complete revolution around each other. A comparatively simple calculation then shows that the two bodies must be at a distance of about 55,000,000 miles apart, three-fifths the distance from the earth to the sun and slightly less than the distance from Venus to the sun. If the two stars combined were of the same mass as Venus and the sun they would revolve in about the same period of 225 days, but as the matter of fact they revolve in fourteen days, one-fifteenth of the time and at a speed over seven times as great as Venus, this evidence indicates a very much stronger gravitational pull between the two bodies and a very much greater mass.

Greatest in Mars

"If we know the period of revolution and the separation of two bodies in space, two suns, or a sun and planet, or a planet and satellite, we can easily calculate the mass of the two bodies by the comparatively simple relation derived from the law of gravitation called the Harmonic Law. This law states that the combined mass of the revolving system is proportional to the cube of the separation divided by the square of the period. In all these calculations we use the earth-sun system as the standard, and as the earth has only one three hundred and thirty thousandths the mass of the sun, the mass of the required system in terms of the sun's mass.

"Hence in this case we have the double star revolving in a period of 14.4 divided by 365.25, about one-twenty-fifth of the earth's period, the year, at a distance of 55,000,000 divided by 93,000,000, or about three-fifths the sun's distance. From the Harmonic Law then the mass of this double star will be three-fifths cubed, divided by one-twenty-fifth squared, the mass of the sun which comes out 135 times the sun's mass. If we use the exact fractions we find that this mass is 135 times the mass of the sun, that the brighter star is 75.5 and the fainter 63.3 times the sun's mass, or about four times greater than for any previously discovered system.

Leads to Theory Revision
"A further calculation from the spectroscopic observations shows that the two bodies are revolving in an elliptical orbit, the brighter star being at the focus of the ellipse. The same shape as the orbits of the planets. But the spectroscopic results cannot tell us anything of the inclination of the orbit to the line of sight. If this plane passes through the earth, the distance and masses are as given above, but if not, the masses must be calculated from the observations of the two stars and their distances apart. It is practically certain that this plane is inclined more than fifteen degrees, else the two bodies would mutually eclipse each other and there would be a decrease in the brightness which has not been observed. This condition makes it probable the combined mass is 160 times the sun's mass, while if we consider all the possible inclinations, the probable average value would be 220 times the sun's mass.

The very great mass of these two bodies shows they must be exceptional in many respects, and their discovery may require some revision of the theories of the formation and constitution of the stars. However, that may be, we can easily deduce further interesting data about these two tremendous stars. I have already said that they are about twenty times as bright as the sun for each unit of area and as they are so much more massive they must be so much brighter.

15,000 Times More Light

"Two methods are available for determining how much brighter they are than the sun. The first is wholly theoretical, and is based on the estimate of Cambridge, from which we find that the brighter star is about 20,000 and the fainter 15,000 times as bright as the sun.

10,000 Light Years Away

"It is admitted by Edington that the calculated values are somewhat too high for the very hot stars, so that we may take as a moderate estimate of the brightness that the brighter star is 15,000 and the fainter 12,000 times as bright as the sun, much brighter than any known star in the sky. The second brightest star in the sky is Rigel, which is, however, only half the brightness of this pair. Knowing the actual brightness of the sun, the apparent brightness of Rigel, and the distance of the sun from Rigel, we can calculate the distance of this star sixty times the square root of 27,000, or about 10,000 light years.

"This double star system is moving away from the sun at the rate of 128 miles a second, but there is also a cloud of calcium vapor either surrounding or else between us and the pair. The spectroscopic shows this by letting their grounds to appear at a constant speed of ten miles per second. If this cloud surrounds the system, it should move with the same speed, but a possible explanation of the discrepancy is the relative shift of the spectrum lines.

Calls in Einstein

"Einstein's theory calls for three astronomical consequences: The advance of the perihelion of Mercury, which is fully confirmed, the bending of light passing near the sun, which has been observed at the 1919 eclipse, and is to be again observed in Australia on September 21, and a displacement of the lines of the spectrum of a heavy body to the red. This last effect is known as the Doppler effect, and is equivalent to a speed of slightly less than half a mile per second away from us, but it has not yet been definitely found in the sun.

"We may summarize then the principal facts that we have been able to deduce about this extraordinary double star, namely, the quality of the light coming from it when analyzed by the spectroscopic.

"The system, which is 10,000 light years away, consists of two enormous stars, one of which is about 75,000 degrees Fahrenheit revolving around one another at a distance of about 55,000,000 miles at speeds of 128 and 144 miles per second respectively, in about 14.4 days. The brighter, heavier and slower of the two stars is nearly twenty times the diameter of the sun, and is surrounded by a massive and 15,000 times as bright as the fainter, lighter and faster moving star, and about eighteen times the mass of the sun. The system is as heavy and 12,000 times as bright as the sun. The velocity of the system is fifteen miles per second away from the sun, as compared with ten miles per second of a surrounding or intervening cloud of calcium vapor. Although in the right direction, the difference is greater than can be explained by the relative shift of the lines.

"Although stars like Antares and Betelgeuse are much less dense, they are extremely tenuous, and we have no information about their mass. This star, which is No. 1309 of the six degree zone of Argelander's catalogue, is especially remarkable for its enormous mass, about four times as great as any previously determined, and the discovery and investigation is important chiefly on that account and on its bearing on the theories of the constitution and development of the stars."

High Taxes Force Duke To Sell Estate To His 400 Tenants

London, July 22.—The Duke of Richmond and Gordon has resolved to sell his estate, the Barchin, portion of his estates. It embraces fully 60,000 acres, is valued at approximately £500,000 and yields a yearly revenue of more than £25,000. The present rate of exchange is £111.250. The estates extend throughout six parishes and include much valuable arable land and many farms noted for the breeding of high-class pedigree shorthorn and Aberdeen Angus cattle, Clydesdale horses, and commercial stock.

The Duke, through his Aberdeen agent, has stated that it is a very severe wrench for him to be compelled to put the Barchin estate on the market. But so great is the burden of local taxation, and so totally nothing remains over from the income derived from the rents of agricultural holdings. Several of the holdings have been occupied by successive generations of tenants for upward of 300 years.

In view of the long association, extending over many generations, of the tenants with the estate, the Duke, in intimating to some 400 tenants his decision to sell immediately, "it will readily be believed that only grave necessity compels me to do so."

Before exposing the various holdings at auction the Duke is affording his tenants an opportunity to acquire their holdings by private bargain. He has arranged with an Aberdeen Assurance Company that, in the event of any tenant desiring assistance in purchasing his holding, the company will lend, in approved cases, up to 50 per cent of the value of the holding. Already a number of applications for the purchase of holdings.

ROYAL ASCOT GRAND But It Was Still More Imposing in Days of Queen's Buckhounds

London, July 6.—(By Mail).—The royal procession for which Ascot is famous, but which was prevented this year by bad weather, was initiated by George IV., who as Prince of Wales won the Derby at Ascot, and Stakes in June, 1791. After this event his father, George III., made a point of appearing at these races and driving a coach and four, and the Crown property—in regal state, and thus Ascot acquired its social reputation and prestige.

Imposing as the social progress still undoubtedly is, none who remember it in the golden days of Her Majesty's Buckhounds can cease to regret the necessity of their abolition. Before these days it was customary for the Master of the Buckhounds—who was generally some sporting peer of the type of Lord Ribblesdale and who was so responsible for the course—to head the procession on horseback. He was followed by the servants of the hunt in scarlet and green liveries, after which came the carriages, and to each of these were four horses ridden by postillions in scarlet. British and foreign royalties occupied the first four carriages, and the last two or three contained the suite, while between the carriages were outriders in scarlet.

Shorn of Own Jewels, Nobility Hire Tiaras to Go to King's Court

London, July 22.—It has been remarked as a singular thing that the jewellers' shops on Bond Street were kept open very late on the night the first court was held in Buckingham Palace. Inquiries into the matter disclosed an interesting development of these times.

The main reason the shops were kept open was to take back the tiaras and other jewelry that had been hired to be worn at the court. Those who hired the tiaras were not jackdaws dressed in peacock's feathers, nor the "new people," but mainly members of the old families who have gone to court time out of mind.

The extent to which these territorial families have been hit by the war is shown by the fact that the jewellers' shops on Bond Street were kept open very late on the night the first court was held in Buckingham Palace. Inquiries into the matter disclosed an interesting development of these times.

DROPS HER SHACKLES England Now Has Woman Surveyor, Allowed in by Sex Disqualification Act

London, July 22.—The world moves even in Great Britain and England boasts at last a woman surveyor. She is Miss Irene M. She expects to become a Fellow of the Surveyors' Institute.

SOCIETY BEAUTIES ACT

Daughters of Lord Chancellor and Marquis Curzon Going in for Film Work

London, July 22.—Several well-known English society beauties have been reported as intending to become movie stars. One of these is the Hon. Eleanor Smith, daughter of the Lord Chancellor, who, it is said, may have a part in the British film melodrama "Flowers of Passion." It is said the Lord Chancellor and his wife, Lady Birkenhead, do not look sympathetically upon their daughter's screen ambitions. Miss Smith is twenty and a very pretty girl. She is a friend of Lady Alington, who appeared with Lady Duff Cooper (Lady Diana Manners) in "A Glorious Adventure." Miss Smith is now in Brussels acting for a Belgian film company.

TAKE OWN CAR ACROSS With Her Three Daughters California Woman Sets Out to See England by Motor

London, July 22.—Three pretty young women were observed one morning recently superintending the loading up of a large brown touring car, with a Massachusetts license plate, which stood outside the Savoy Hotel on the Strand. With them was a charming, gray-haired elderly woman in a smart blue costume.

A reporter who had watched the spectacle with interest asked the elderly woman how far the party was going.

"We're going all over England—and right up to Scotland," she answered. "We're taking a three months' trip—myself and my three daughters. We're being our own chauffeurs—two of my daughters drive. We're going to Brighton, Oxford, Stratford-on-Avon, Inverness everywhere. We are going to look out for a home on the way which we can take for a month or so."

This gray-haired woman, who had the youthfulness of the elderly American, was Mrs. Charles Floete, a widow, of San Francisco, Cal., and she explained that she and her daughters had come over alone to have the motor trip in this country and had brought their own car.

WANTED NO HEARSE J. C. Christie, F.R.C.S., Proposed That His Ashes Be Used for Fertilizer.

London, July 22.—A funeral without a hearse, at the smallest possible expense, with no friends or relatives "waiting time" to attend, was ordered in the will by James Campbell Christie, Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society and science teacher.

He wrote: "It will do no good to any one to attend, and the absence of the usual formalities will give poor Mr. and Mrs. Grundy something to talk about. I desire that my ashes after cremation be disposed of at a crematorium or used by my trustees for fertilizing their potatoes."

AN EXAMPLE TO THE WORLD

THE BOUNDARY WITHOUT A FORT (From The New York World.)

In suggesting to our State Department the Rush-Bagot agreement between the United States and Canada, the League of Nations was formed to install. The everlasting fisheries question; the Maine boundary; the Fifty-four-Forty or Fight; the Fenian raids; the "underground railroad" for slaves escaping to Canada; the Alaska boundary—history is full of provocations to conflict which were happily left unexplored.

Practice improved upon the letter of the agreement. It limited only naval forces, but its spirit prevailed also on land. Save some antiquated blockhouses, toothless now, the boundary is without a fort. It is not only immemorially long, it is "uncyclable." The experts in Paris beat their brains to discover border-lines that should run along natural obstructions, dividing the continent into pockets and valleys. This boundary of ours does not repel but invites communication. For a distance of great miles between Paris and Constantinople by rail along unmarked prairie, where any one may step across. Then it follows the mountainous series of inland seas, where the nature is hostile to communication.

Nor is that all. There is the natural urge to seek the near market; the products of the South and North. And as if to lure trade, the very glaciers of prehistoric time grooved with their mighty snouts channels of easy transit, or the rains

London Women Rush To Join Luxury Club To Be "Just Like Men's"

London, July 22.—Fashionable women of the West End are rushing to join the Park Lane Club, a new luxury club for women which is being organized. A beautiful mansion in Park Lane has been taken for this purpose, and here every comfort and convenience of men's clubs will be found, in addition to many added features which only the feminine mind can conceive.

Social and financial references of the highest order are necessary for every prospective member, and hundreds of inquiries already have been made. The club probably will open in September.

In discussing the club the secretary said: "So many ladies are no longer able to afford the luxury of a lady's maid, as they did before the war, that we believe the club will meet a great demand. The presence of a court dressmaker will be an important attraction. Gone will be the days of frantic anxiety over an ill-fitting ballroom frock. It will only be necessary for a member to have her gown altered at once. And she can also smoke while the gown is being fixed. The club will be residential; there will be a restaurant, showrooms, a ballroom, hair-dressing, millinery and shoe fitting accommodations.

"The idea is to fulfill what is called a great need in the modern woman's circle—to provide all the comforts of men's clubs—and we are also going further, by catering to woman's whims."

TANTALLON CASTLE UP

London, July 22.—Tantallon Castle, immortalized by Sir Walter Scott, is being sold by the Earl of Douglas, who is the owner of the Douglas clan, is included in the sale of the North Berwick estate of 2,600 acres.

The castle is rich in historical associations, many battles having been fought around its walls. It was once besieged by James V. who starved out the occupants. Later it was the scene of an onslaught by Cromwell.

BALFOUR KNEW BEFORE King, Queen, Premier Attend Harvey Dinner to Chief Justice Taft

London, July 6 (By Mail).—One of the most notable events of this London season was the dinner given Saturday by Ambassador and Mrs. Harvey to Chief Justice Taft, which was attended by King George and Queen Mary.

Mrs. Harvey has been busy lately making arrangements to introduce American women at court. If she had but a present all the usual number of invitations to disburse, it was comparatively small compared with the number of those who wanted to make their courtesy to the British Sovereign and his court.

Among the guests of the Harveys at the dinner in Mr. Taft's honor were the Prime Minister and Mrs. Lloyd George, who took little part in the evening. Indeed, the Premier spends most of his spare time on golf links, and this open air exercise probably is keeping him fit despite all his heavy burdens of the last five years.

Lord High Chancellor and Lady Birkenhead also were there. The Lord Chancellor is another outdoor enthusiast and is especially fond of yachting.

Marchioness Curzon was present, but the Marquis, who is the British Foreign Minister, was unable to be there because of a long period of serious illness.

Whenever there is a big dinner sponsored by Americans it is certain that the Earl of Balfour will be invited. He was one of Mr. Harvey's guests at the embassy dinner, as were Lord and Lady Lee of Fareham. Which has surprised the Londoners who have met Chief Justice Taft since his arrival in the British capital is his "slenderness." Most of them had come to believe that he really was huge, but after seeing the Chief Justice they say Mr. Taft's countrymen, particularly the American cartoonists, have been guilty of great exaggeration. When it was first intimated that the Big Chief was coming over to England it was generally believed that he weighed about 400 pounds. But being 100 pounds lighter now he is not so much regarded as a normal big man.

If he doesn't add to his weight while in London it will not be the fault of his British guests. One day this week Mr. Taft attended three dinners.

Sunday Sports Again Issue as Dean Tells Boys They May Play

London, July 22.—The question whether open public sports should be permitted on Sunday, which has provoked so much discussion in America, where the change was violent, a severe restraint continued to be practised. Matters were, however, brought to a head when the Puritans, in their desire for a yet stricter way of life, tried to identify Sunday with the Jewish Sabbath. This feeling was voiced by a Suffolk clergyman, Nicholas Bownd, in his sermon on the subject of the "Sabbathment," or "The True Doctrine of the Sabbath."

The first reply to this was from the pen of that versatile monarch James Watson, who in 1816 wrote the "Book of Sports." Here the King declared that his people might take part in all sports on Sundays except bull and cock fighting. The book was republished by Charles I. with a special admonition: "Look to it that all disorders there may be prevented and punished, and that all neighbors abstain from wicked practices, and lawful exercises, be used."

It is recorded that 120 books on the subject were published during the next half century, but the views were current, those for a British Sunday made little headway, for in 1643 Parliament ordered the "Book of Sports" to be burned by the hangman, and the next year the Puritan Sabbath was enforced throughout the land.

Still, James I. might be beautified as the patron saint of Sunday sports whether in England or the United States.

Runs True to Form of What He Told Morley About Elevated Commoners Forgetting Old Ways and Temper

London, July 22.—When the Earl of Balfour took his seat in the House of Lords did he remember an idea he once expressed to Viscount (then Mr. John) Morley, and set down by the latter, in his "Recollections?" "The curious thing," said Mr. Balfour, "is that men who have been in the House of Commons, when they go into the House of Lords, seem quite to forget the temper and ways of the House of Commons."

Lord Morley himself has confessed to a change of mentality on translation to the Upper House. "I found," he recounts, "when the dinner hour arrived that I had already, in less than a twelvemonth, acquired one inexorable propensity of every self-respecting peer; I adjourned and after a short nap, at the club, instead of returning to hear more speeches, I went home to bed."

SIR OLIVER LODGE BUSY

Now 71, He Experiments With Wireless; Believes It Possible to Produce Rain at Will

London, July 22.—Sir Oliver Lodge, England's veteran scientist, knows how to play on the imagination of his countrymen. On his seventy-first birthday he casually announced that much of his time is devoted to wireless research work, but for the time being he shall keep the results of his experiments dark. He believes that there is a great future for broadcasting.

Being asked what he thinks is the cause of England's protracted drought—last year was the driest of all recorded English Summers and there has been some duplication of it this year—Sir Oliver answered: "The atmosphere wants electrifying. Some day, I have no doubt, a method will be found of electrifying the atmosphere. The produce rain at will. It is one of my dreams of the future."

MORNING POST BITTER

Tory Newspaper is Conducted by Lady Bathurst Who Has Queer Hobby of Keeping Goats

London, July 22.—Lady Bathurst, daughter of the late Lord Glenesk and owner of the Morning Post, a Conservative journal of influence, has several fads, the principal one of which, perhaps, is the raising of goats and keeping geese.

She is a very forceful person, and her newspaper consistently inveighs against modern tendencies. Political circles here have been greatly amused this week by the prominence given to the row between Lord and Lady Bathurst on one side and Lord Middleton and some other southern Unionists on the other, growing out of allegations in the Morning Post which Lord Middleton said placed him in the same class as Rory O'Connor, the Irish rebel leader who has occupied the Four Courts for some time.

Lord Middleton said that had it been a bust of the late Queen Victoria, he would have been a duel between him and Lord Bathurst.

Only recently Lord Northcliffe, in a pamphlet describing British newspaper owners, described Lady Bathurst as directing the affairs of Great Britain's chief Tory newspaper. When no apology was forthcoming from the Bathurst family Lord Middleton took up the matter in the House of Lords, where Lord Chancellor Birkenhead said the Morning Post's attack was particularly vile.

EVEN A SPARROW LIKES A BATH

BIRTHDAYS are wondrous events! Little Eileen had spent the day in suppressed excitement. To-morrow would be her sixth birthday and it had been promised that if she went to bed at eight o'clock that night the official birthday could start at six o'clock in the morning to come. As she lay on the cool grass near the Summer house Eileen reflected that each birthday had been more wonderful than the last, and her thoughts played with the delicious conjury of what the good fairies would bring on the wings of the sixth great day.

It was one of those hot close days, when even the youngest and most well-cared-for doggies prefer to lie in the shade, and even then their poor tongues hang out, panting. Eileen began to feel the heat, and shifted more closely under the shade of the apple tree that formed her favorite bower. As she moved she noticed a sparrow sitting on a bough of the tree, and lay watching the little fellow for some time. For want of anyone to talk to Eileen picked on the sparrow and was not deterred when that bird continued to sit in silence.

Presently she grew thirsty, and for want of anything better to say she asked the sparrow if it too, would like a drink. It may have been fancy, of course, but strangely enough that bird twittered on the bough and rocked backwards and forwards in evident pleasure. Eileen, wide-eyed, repeated her question, and this time there was no mistaking the answer, for the sparrow gave vent to a flow of silvery notes that cracked off suddenly, as one whose voice failed by reason of a parched throat. Pleased with her fancy Eileen ran to the water tap at the bottom of the garden and returned presently with a glass dish of water.

Now Eileen was a sensible little girl and knew that the sparrow would not come too close to human hands, so she set the dish down about ten feet away from the hole of the apple tree. The sparrow flitted for a moment or two and then flew down to a lower branch of the tree. Eileen remained still. Presently the little bird hopped along the bough to a clearing in the leaves and flew down to the side of the water dish. He stood watching Eileen for a while, and as no movement occurred there to disturb his fears, he dipped a slender bill into the water and raised it almost immediately, while the little girl fancied she could see the little throat working as the cooling drops were engulfed. Alternately the sparrow raised his head and lowered it, until the water in the dish was sensibly less.

Then he did a most unexpected thing, he got right into the dish, feet and all. Eileen watched spellbound, for she had not seen a bird take a bath before, and all this was new to her. The sparrow crouched down in the water and used his two little wings to throw the liquid over himself in a silver spray. The little bill dipped again and again into the water, while the shower-bath progressed apace. Presently he hopped on to the edge of the dish sat there preening his feathers. The little head would be directed here and there as the bill pulled here a feather into place, and there tucked a stray bit of fluff under cover. Soon this operation was complete, even to his careful fancy, and the little one flew again to the apple tree. From but a dusty looking little speck, he had now changed into a handsome cavalier, and his song gave vent to his happiness.

Eileen did many things on her birthday, and had a wonderfully happy anniversary, but the first act she did was to place a dish of clear water for the sparrow, and she had the pleasure of seeing this used to the same good advantage as the previous day. Day followed day and in the course of time Eileen's garden was the home of many little birds, who had come to recognize the sympathy with which they were received.

The Sandman Story For To-night

Brave Prince Julian—Part V.

PRINCE JULIAN was as anxious to hear the story of Princess Olga as was Princess Amie, and so, seating herself on the steps beside them, Princess Olga told the rest of her strange story.

"To escape becoming the wife of the Ogre I chose to be changed into the form of a gray dove and fly away from the tower," said Princess Olga.

The Prince and Princess Amie could hardly keep from exclaiming, they were so surprised.

Waving her hand toward me to know that this beautiful dark Princess was the soft gray dove that had helped them. But their curiosity was greater than their surprise and they kept quiet and listened.

"As I was flying out of the tower window the old Witch who had come to see her son had just hobbled out of the mountain path and saw me. Of course, being a witch, she knew at once what had happened, and waving her cane towards me she cried out, 'A gray dove you shall remain until a mortal wishes you could speak.'"

"I knew that the Ogre would look for another Princess for his bride as he wanted to become a King, and so I watched and listened, for, of course, I could not go back to my home and hope to be shown in the form of a gray dove. And so I flew from place to place."

"One day I heard the Ogre tell his mother that he wanted her to give to his boots the magic power to escape all mortals, for he intended to leave his magic land, and he always kept his feet upon magic ground."

"I shall bring back the Princess Amie and place her in the tower and this time I want you to make sure the fairies do not spoil my plan," he said.

"I flew to your home, Princess Amie, and as you know I fell wounded at your feet; but first I tried to gain your sympathy by fluttering above your head, hoping you would say you wished I could speak and tell who had been so cruel as to wound me."

"This you did not do, Princess, so as I fell I let fall a drop of blood on one of your white robes, turning the flowers red, thinking you would then know I was an enchanted bird and make the wish that would break the spell. But though you were kind and bound up my wound you did not wish I could speak, and so, knowing what was to happen, I kept the bit of lace bound around me and waited to learn if your Prince would want for you or, like mine, give it up after a few days and never look for me again."

Here Princess Olga sighed and Princess Amie looked at her brave lover and smiled, which quite repaid him for the risk he had taken to rescue her.

"I suppose it was Prince Julian who in some way over threw the Ogre and caused his feet to leave the magic ground which changed him again to his own form of the brown dwarf and broke all the spells the Witch had given to her son as the Ogre."

"This broke the spell that held me and I regained my own form again, though it was rather awkward, for I happened to be perched on a limb of a tall tree when it happened and it was not easy to get down."

"I suppose you will be married to-night, Princess Amie? As for me, I do not know what to do. You see I am just as I was when the Ogre stole me, for the fairies changed me that very night into the gray dove so that now I have my own form again I am still young, while the Prince I was to have married is an old man."

"Come home with us, Princess Olga," said Princess Amie. "Your Prince does not deserve to have such a beautiful bride. He was not brave enough to search till he found you."

And so she did, and that night at the wedding a young and handsome Prince fell in love with Princess Olga and they were married, and in all the land there were none so loved and admired as the Princess Olga and Princess Amie, nor were there any in all the kingdoms around who had had such strange adventures.

Only a Common Housefly, But I Do See Life!

I AM only a common housefly, but I see lots of life! Time was when I could do as I wished, but all that is changed, and I am now pursued relentlessly by what humans call the anti-fly campaign. We are continually in a state of active service, only our battlefield is the house. I should have been decorated long ago "for service in the house," but somehow nobody ever thought of giving a medal to a fly. "Common house fly" they call me, though of course I hear many other names fired at my head.

Clumsy, slow-moving and slower witted things, they humans. Ponderous creatures with voices like a gust of wind, and tempers like an inferno. Apart from a slight irritation at finding them in every house I visit, however, they trouble me little. I live my life and they live there, and as long as they do not interfere I will leave them alone.

The trouble is they will interfere, just cannot seem to keep their minds off me. Not that I would harm them; either, for I am far too busy living my own life. But no, I no sooner settle down on a table to pick up a bit of breakfast than "biff" a fist the size of a good file's palace comes tumbling down. Actually try to squash me, they do. But there, I can afford to laugh, they merely hurt their hands and I am a yard away waiting for them to do it again.

I was one of a large family, I think it was ten thousand at the last census, but of course we suffered some casualties since then. I, myself, was wounded last week, and I will tell you how it happened. It was Aunt Martha's fault really, but I had better start at the beginning. You see I had been spending the early part of the summer in a home in the Uplands, and had a very quiet, easy time of it, but the people moved away and shut up the house. I stayed on for a while but the caretaker smoked terribly strong tobacco and really I am a little sensitive about a pipe in the house. Well, to proceed, I tried several houses, all the way from Oak Bay to Esquimalt, but it was in James Bay that I finally found one that suited. It was much smaller, of course than my former home, but still there was an air of gaiety about it that appealed to me. There were men in this house too, but somehow they seemed to be busy about their own affairs, though really I don't know what they ever did. They would sleep all day and go out at night. Burglars, I think, but then I am not particular, and there was lots of food in the house.

As I say Aunt Martha was to blame for my casualty, not that she did it in person. No, I really believe that the dear old lady would not harm a hair of my head, but she took it into her head to go shopping and unimposed of the fact that it was my day out too, shut me up in the cooler. I suppose you will say that I had no right to be in the cooler but you would be wrong, for even a fly must take precautions against this heat. Besides all the food was there, and I was hungry.

Well, Aunt Martha fussed off to town, and left little Bobbie alone in the house. Bobbie is ten years old and the idol of his auntie's heart, but a dangerous foe to me flies, and a more deadly shot than his father. Bobbie had taken several cracks at me while I was in that house but I had my eye on him and escaped. This time, however, he caught me off guard. There, I admit it, he did, and it all happened in this manner: I had gone into the cooler for breakfast, and finding the lid of some fine old loganberry jam there had stayed to lunch.

Now it so happens that Bobbie is fond of that jam, and while he was alone in the house decided to pay a visit to the cooler. Of course if I had been thinking I might have known it when the cooler door was opened, but I was very busy at the time, and did not take much notice. I guessed he would be wanting some of the chocolate cake, but I did not know Bobbie, he takes jam first and cake later, it seems. It was while I was in the very act of crawling out of the jam pot that he got me. A chance thumb settled down on my left wing as he grasped the jar, and of course I had to leave the wing behind. I don't quite know what to do. I think I will rest up and then go back to Uplands. The tobacco of the caretaker is very rank, but at least danger is slight, and I can get some peace. Oh, I nearly forgot, did you ever see anything more silly than 'the screen door'? The Uplands' house has them all over. I sit on the outside until the door is held open for me, and then go in. It is a "cinch." Humans are funny!

IF you do that, I will spank you," warned his mother. Bobby burst into tears instantly. Alarmed by this result, his mother put the warning in a more moderate form, "Bobby, if you don't do it, mother won't spank you," she said. In a voice choked with tears, wifful Bobby made reply, "But I'm going to do it."

HOUSEHOLD MECHANICS

HERE'S HOW YOU MAKE IT.

This is the time of the year for boats and boating. The small boys of the family will have much fun with a speed boat, such as the one diagramed above. Use a soft piece of any good, light wood, 1 1/2 inches thick. Cypress is best. A tube of glass or metal, a wire for the shaft, tin for the propeller, a common head of good size, a rubber band, and a screw eye, are all the material that is needed.

Gouge Out the Hull.

First make the hull, gouging out the pit with a common gouge. Shape it very carefully. Then test for the water line as nearly as possible. Having this information, the slant of the metal tube can be approximately determined. The upper end of the tube must be above the water line, so that no water will enter the hull. It should be as short as possible in order that the rubber band can be made long enough to supply the proper power.

Next lay out and cut to shape the tin propeller, punching a hole at the centre for the shaft.

Determine the length of wire necessary for the shaft, then bend the rear end and solder to the propeller as shown. Slip an ordinary bead on the shaft, insert the shaft in the tube, then bend the front end to form a small wire eye that will hold the rubber.

Rubber Drives Boat. A rubber band fastened to the end of the shaft and to a screw eye in the front of the boat provides the power to drive it.

The small handle or crank makes it easy to wind the band, and the band tends to relieve the friction.

The boat may be left natural, or it may be painted. A nice coat of paint will add greatly to its appearance, and will make it last longer. The water line may be shown by a paint of a different color.

An Adventurous Trip

Still Further Adventures of Ben Smith and Tom Seeley. Contributed by Mrs. Harrison Eke.

"HURRY, Ben," cried Tom, ignoring his new terror, "lets go for a row." He slid neared the edge as he spoke, untying the rope which anchored the small skiff to a peg, and got in. Ben followed, looking cautiously around. "Give me the oar."

Ben handed the oar which lay close by, and got in.

"We are two jolly, jolly sailor boys," sang Tom boisterously. "We've just come home from South America."

"Aw, quit, Tom, somebody will hear and take a shot at us."

Tom laughed long and loudly. "If you're not the limit," he cried, taking breath. "Ain't the sun ever going to shine any more with you, Ben? Tain't clouded over my horizon yet."

Ben made no reply, instead he looked gloomily ahead. Tom plied the oar deftly, singing as the boat glided over the smooth rippling water. It was his intention to row down the river a short distance and then turn back. "By that time Seth would be ready," he thought, but at that moment something attracted his attention on the other side. He lifted his hand from the oar and pointed to a cabin resting on a small clearing seen through the trees. The oar, released, slipped into the water and disappeared.

"What are we going to do now?" cried Ben in alarm as the oar went out of sight. Tom amazed at the empty oarlock, puckering his brows perplexedly.

"We'll just have to let the stream carry us and trust to fate."

Ben's face paled, then he related with relish a narrative of two boys in exactly the same predicament, who had to stay all night in the boat. When they were picked up by a scow in the morning, they were "pretty nearly exhausted." The story had little effect on Tom. He folded his arms and settled to watch the fitful drifting of the small craft. Tom's fearful view of their plight dispelled the fears of Ben somewhat who began to talk hopefully of a possible drift near enough to wade in to shore.

"Of course, we'll get there some time," vouchsafed Tom. He took out his blue spotted kerchief in readiness to use as a flag of distress as he spoke.

"That's no use," said Ben as Tom began untying the knot which secured his small hoard of wealth, preparatory to placing it in his pocket. "Take mine. It's white and quickly seen." Ben pulled out his handkerchief and gave it to Tom, discovering at the same time two packets of gum.

"Here's our dinner," said Ben with a smile as he gave one packet to Tom.

"Lummie," ejaculated Tom, "we're in luck's way. When do we eat?"

"Right now," returned Ben as he began removing the pink and white wrapping and filling his mouth with gum, and then gazed longingly once more shoreward. They were both good swimmers, but decided not to take chances in strange waters.

"There may be an undercurrent or something," said Ben.

All this time they were drifting nearer the shore, but not enough to wade, completed, he sat down to await the return of the boys. Impatiently he lit cigarette after cigarette, and threw them away after carefully extinguishing them; then rose to his feet. Placing two fingers between his lips, he sent forth a shrill whistle. The echo was the only response he got.

"Wonder where they are," he said aloud, and the started off to hunt them up. Being somewhat concerned, he failed to notice much that would have interested him by the way. Walking half a mile along the river bank and failing to locate them, he became alarmed. In his imagination he pictured the lifeless bodies of the two boys floating down the river, and wondered who would be the first to discover them. He thought of the parents' anguish on learning the catastrophe and many other horrors, when suddenly, on turning the bend, a short distance from the shore he espied the two boys in a row boat.

Tom, who was the first to sight Seth Lloyd, waved Ben's white handkerchief wildly. Seth took off his cap and waved back. In a flash he realized their position. They were adrift. Seth was at his wit's end to know what to do. Not was a dwelling in sight nor a craft upon the water! He waved again, indicating an assurance of rescue and then started in search of help.

The boys were naturally relieved. Ben nearly capsize the boat with joy.

Seth walked some distance before he came to anything which resembled a building, and then he was not sure if it was habitable. Fortunately, on nearing the place he discovered it was a small shack owned by a trapper who happened to be at home and at that moment sorting skins. He immediately on hearing the story of the two boys adrift on the river, offered the use of his boat moored alongside the water's edge. Seth lost no time in going to the rescue. Almost exhausted by rowing against the tide, he reached the boys.

Wins Weekly Prize

Miss Eva Hambleton, 2550 Blackwood Street, a sixteen-year-old reader, is successful in winning the first award in the Photographic Contest for this week. Many photographs were submitted, but all in the same section of the contest, namely, that of beautiful places. Miss Hambleton submitted a charming study of Allan's Lake, Salt Spring Island. Contributors are reminded that all entries for judging in each week should be in by 8 o'clock on each Wednesday. The weekly prize has been forwarded to the winner.

"You young clowns!" he shouted as he neared them, "what's the meaning of this?"

"Wasn't our fault," excused Tom, "we lost the oar."

"And came near losing yourselves," added Seth annoyed. "Here, catch hold of this one and row for all you're worth. It's getting late."

The two small boats sailed merrily along but the thoughts of the occupants were not in accordance with the rhythmic swish of the feathery ripple. On the contrary, Seth wondered what explanation he could offer the far management. Ben thought of his parents, while Tom wondered how long it would have been before they reached the lone cabin on the other side. Each thus puzzled and concerned, they rowed to land and sprang ashore, then securing the boats they retraced their steps to where the aeroplane rigidly settled on alighting.

"Did you fix her, Seth?" queried Ben, peering around with interest.

"Hour after you had gone. Jump in," commanded the young aviator. "Unless you're figuring on a night out, we've no time to lose."

The two boys at once obeyed. They asked no further questions until they landed once more on the exhibition grounds.

It was perhaps the first time Ben's parents refrained from anger on their mysterious disappearance.

"It was quite accidental," related Seth to Ben's parents later, whereupon they smiled good-humoredly, forgetting the anxious moments they had spent waiting for the return of the aeroplane. "It sure was an adventurous trip," he added, smiling broadly.

THE END.

STICKING TO ORDERS

FLANNIGAN was new to the railroad foreman's work, and had been warned not to send such loquacious telegrams. "Wire what's wrong, in a few words," he had been told repeatedly. Not long after that the district superintendent received a graphic fulfillment of the brevity orders:

"Number two wrecked," ran the first message. The superintendent fumed, then returned "Wire more details." Then came the reply, "On again, off again, gone again, Flannigan."

MIRROR OF LIFE

Of daily use in the civilized world, the ordinary mirror reflects what is therein shown. A dirty face is answered with its duplicate, a clean face finds a clean face to look upon, and so on. Life is much the same. Think good thoughts, and the thoughts you will inspire in the mirror of life, but by all means from the minds of others. Grumble and feel sorry for yourself, and that is just what your world will reflect. Laugh and the world will be a better, merrier place to live in.

READ GOOD BOOKS

Not all that is good in this age is contained within the covers of school-text books. Much learning, and more important still, wisdom, is to be found between the covers of books of authors that do not come within the limits of a school. Now that the Summer holidays are here, read. Let your parents and teachers direct your choice of books, but by all means Wisdom is the grain that must be sown from the chaff of knowledge, and it is wisdom that matters. Reading will help you to do this.

BE ATTENTIVE ALWAYS

Prejudice is the rust that hinders the wheels of progress. Broadmindedness and an ability to see the other fellow's point of view is the lubricant that smooths the course of the wheels of civilization. Understanding is a fair road to the development of an open and generous mind. Understanding springs from interest and attention, the two first qualities of courtesy. Practice interest and attention to your elders, and the rest will come.

STRONG ARM METHODS

Mother: "Nurse, did you kill all the germs in the baby's milk?"
Nurse: "Yes'm, I ran it through the meat chopper twice."—1
